Hi Every One i will tell you something Romany Gypsies have been persecuted from day one of them leaving India and other parts of Asia just like the Jews Africans Native Americans and many others it still goes on today all over the world when it's told on the news in the papers and on the Internet about world war 2 and the mass murders of the Jewish people by the German Solders it never tells about the amount of Romany Gypsies killed by them. Today they are being killed by the hundreds in Russia starved in other countries their children being taken from them and put in homes the next day the young girls as young as 11 being put on the streets for prostitution the Mafia getting hold of them and making them steel and con people. There are a lot of good Romanies as well as the small few bad ones what about the settled people the none Romany Gypsy who are pedofiles who rape kill go round stabbing people robbing people braking into houses conning people leaving rubbish everywhere and in the past and still do it today starting wars enslaving people taking countries that's not theirs and puss in the Natives out i could go on but i bet none of you will think twice about my comment and won't take notice and still have your negative views and still keep your Racist ways and keep texting your small minded racist thoughts	Racist	Ethnicity	1/247	0.405

this is not true at all it is nonsense roma means man and that also means the same in egypt the original east roma empire are the roma itself that still live but are sorry that the small children of farmers because the fighters are destroyed from all sides and the pope also because the west roma empire has lost 400 years for the east roma empire and the east did not help them so they were furious and they had asked the mongole to do something about it because it was too difficult to invade east roma empire so they had planned a trap and so everything is lost and have also distorted the history because india has nothing to do with it because when their empire was conquered, the farmers and the warriors that were left were sold on as slaves and falsified their history so that they hoped that they would be exterminated and never existed again but after everything was cooled down they gwn back to their place trg to east roma empire which is now called eastern europe look is not strange that only more than 20 million roma live in balkan. like in turkey that used to be called anatolia and there is more roma than bulgarians and macedonians or albanians, it is not strange that macedony kosovo serbia turkey albania etc are full of roma that have returned gwn but the new europeanne don't know them so they come a day that those people will come back when they read something about the east roma empire because if they read the old writing they will take action and know that western europe has betrayed the east roma empire and will be back as before and in the whole of trukije and take over Balkan and etc and that is dangerous because look what they are doing now and they are dangerous but what if they declare	Old	Over 65s	1/352	0.284

Legend states the Sassanid empire imported tons of nomadic Indians from their frontier with India in Sind-Rajasthan etc to do petty work and entertain , when the Sassanids collapsed under the weight of Arab Islamic invasions these folks scattered in all directions . The cousins of Roma in India live in scattered semi nomadic communities across the northern Deccan and are treated as petty thieves by the settled caste Indian population . Its tough, but unless the majority get past the habits of petty crime , theft and scrap dealing (They steal metals and anything salvageable from public infrastructure) , their reputation is not going to improve anytime. The Roma homeland would probably have to be in the Indian state of Rajasthan, where the Roma originated - and the establishment of this nation-state would create pretty much the same problems that the establishment of the State of Israel has created in Palestine. For people that never had experience with romani. Most of the stereotypes you hear about them are true, they are dirty, stinky, thieves and much more, heck, we in Serbia have a saying Lying like a gypsy used for someone that lies a lot. They can't integrate at all, the blocks they live in smells like garbage just like them. Most of them pass the school only because teachers give them passing grades because they feel pity for them. They also have a carriage which they ride through town, collecting garbage in it. Also the horse pulling it can just take a shit on the street and gypsies won't do anything about, they just leave it there without paying any consequences. They also beg on the street, manipulating the emotions of people around them to get money (Like how 1 time i saw a gypo begging on the street with dirty, old clothes and flip flops. And then then that same day during evening i saw that same gypo with his buddies in a caf , he literally had that rapper look with leather jacket, jeans, shoes, cap and goldchains) Also to expand on the thief part. There was this one incident not long ago, where, ironically, a novel writer who part of his wealth spent on charities to help gypsies, was beaten and mugged by 2 gypo kids (Luckily he wasn't killed). There's much more to be said but i'm just tired of typing :P	Old	Over 65s	1/245	0.408

Unfortunately the sad reality is that a Roma country would never work due to their entire culture being somewhat parasitic in nature. They never actually create anything, advance anything or whatever, their culture only works (if you wanna call it that..) because most of the world aren't like them. They need others to actually create things, advance things, build things, run things etc. for them to essentially leech off of. I'm not saying this to be mean or whatever but it's just the nature of that culture, and the relatively few Roma people who actually do well are the ones who've abandoned their culture. The culture simply is not compatible with the modern world or in any country based on rule of law. That's also why the stereotypes about them are the same everywhere they go. Usually stereotypes tend to vary and that's often how we can tell they're just stereotypes. In the USA they have the whole Asians can't drive. thing for example but that's not a thing elsewhere so it's pretty obvious there's nothing about being Asian that makes you an inherently worse driver. If it was true, you'd see the stereotype everywhere with Asians and cars, you don't. On the other hand the stereotypes about the Roma/Gypsies are the exact same everywhere they go as a group, because it's all down to their very culture. It's not a matter of a small minority of them causing problems or whatever, it's the very culture. Everyone living by that culture will cause problems in the west, period. A lot of Americans seem to have a very romanticized view of the Roma/Gypsies though, I have no clue where that comes from but I've had Americans comparing the dislike of the Romas to the 1930's Germany etc. which is insanely ignorant. People often throw the Roma and Sinti together, and in Germany both groups were officially recognised as an ethnic minority requiring political representation and there is an organisation called the Union of Sinti and Roma. The Sinti however do not associate themselves with the Roma and consider themselves to be a different ethnicity altogether. The Sinti of Germany, Holland, France and Spain usually intermarry. Sometimes they marry local non-gypsies but less often. When they do, then the following applies: If the father is a Gypsy, then all the children will be considered Gypsies. If only the mother is a Gypsy, then the children are not considered Gypsies anymore thus their sons never can have a say among the men when deliberating some internal issue. In the language of the Sinti, the word Rom simply means Human . The languages of the Sinti and Roma have similarities but they have trouble understanding each other. Sinti has many words in common with Greek.	Ethnicity	Ethnicity	1/160	0.625

It's so strange to me that so many people just simply believe Romani people are inherently criminal, manipulative, dirty, disruptive, etc. but it doesn't make sense to me. It's a whole group of people. You simply can't generalize personality and behavior like that. And even if large portions of their groups or their cultural norms reflected ideas like that, I just don't understand how you can just dislike or even hate a whole group of people for that. Everyone is an individual, regardless of their background. They're just a different type of people. Masaman, it's very simple. All Gypsies of the world are historically and genetically originally from India and they have nothing to do with Western or Eastern Europeans as well as the Romanian nation or ancient Rome...Their way of living, their original Hindu religion, physical appearance, and language confirm that. These gypsies are called Banjaras in India. The Central and several state governments have lifted these tribes here by giving them special rights in education, jobs and monetary help and also settling them. The crime rate among gypsies in India is negligible. No innocent child or creatures like Gypsies in Europe would seek isolation and freedom ever in presence of genuine sympathy or compassion. The real cause of poverty, enforced state sponsored criminality of Gypsies in Europe and their isolation into ghettos is due to inherent hidden gnashing hatred and degraded criminal attitude of Europeans for which they are known since centuries. European barbarism is well recorded since the days of inquisition and feudalism and colonialism of Asia and Africa with might of weapons and chains. I and I I world wars have given enough proof of your culture and fake super racism. Christ never stood for devils nor would he be ever closer to you. He too was a migrant like any tortured gypsy. America is a far far greater country which never stigmatised Gypsies and gave them dignity and respect. Throughout ,America has treated Gypsies as their own and today they hold enriched and high positions in society there fully integrated. But you have cunningly isolated them and falsely accuse Gypsies for not getting integrated. It is like running after helpless with clubs in hands and accusing them of not getting integrated . Your schools do not admit their children, you do not help them, you do not treat them like humans. You are worst followers of Christ and you are real anti Christ. I live in Europe and have encountered many Gypsies. The thing that Europeans need to understand is that how groups of people act has nothing to do with it being built into their genetics like some of the idiots in this comment section claim. People are people, and if a group of people is more likely to commit crime than another group, it will be for a historical reason. Hell, just think about it - two thousand years ago, Rome and Greece and Egypt were the largest and most powerful western civilizations. These people considered themselves organized and advanced and ethnically superior to the barbarian northern Europeans who lived in huts and constantly raided them to steal their shit. Nowadays Italy and Greece are among the poorer European countries, and places like Germany are considered organized and advanced, and some idiots even think that they're ethnically superior to other groups of people. The fact of the matter is, Gypsies have been excluded from European society for hundreds of years. Why are all these Europeans so surprised that it might be just a bit difficult for them to integrate into society now?	Nothing	Youngsters	1/191	0.524

how can you compare a potential Gypsy state to the state of Israel? Jews had the kingdoms of Israel and Judea before we lost it to foreign invaders, but Gypsies never owned or ruled a land, they were just a group of people from South Asia. that's why Jews prayed for the return of Israel during the exile period, while Gypsies never had such aspirations, they never had a land in the first place. They are not well liked among Italians though there are Italian gypsies. If you want to insult someone in Italian because of the way they live, you call them a gypsy. In English this description conjures up the idea of freedom etc but, in Italian it is very insulting, suggesting drifters, messy, dirty people, who cannot be trusted. It is particularly insulting if applied to describe a certain type of free and easy woman who dresses and behaves a certain way. The term gypsy is also used to describe a certain way of doing business eg travelling salespeople peddling goods door to door etc. This is derogatory, too but not as derogatory as when the term describes a certain type of character who lives a highly mobile, travelling lifestyle. Let me sum up what Romani people are all about: - They are against working or having a job. - They are against education. They consider the school as Gadji - something that destroy their original culture. - They consider marriage at the age of 12 normal. And the the children or children's family object, they must face tremendous punishment. - Rape is acceptable if one is drunk when he does it. - Any kind of problem is solved with violence and revenge. Blood feuds are the only way to solve an issue. Call me a racist, but if you'll talk to a Romani person, you'll get everything I just wrote confirmed.	Racist	Ethnicity	1/112	0.893

Rroma are gypsies. Romani means Romanians. You're title is wrong. Plus they gave themselves the rroma title because of the racism problem, just like blacks don't like being called nigga or negro , the gypsies don't like being called gypsies. It's all politics and fear of racism accusations. And gypsies exist in any other country. Just stop saying romani . That means romanian, which are not gypsies. It's like me writing english as engli . And their languages by the way only they understand. Just so you can have an idea the romanians can not speak the rroma(gypsy) languages and considering they live together in the same country should tell you a lot. It's like a person from Finland not being able to speak and understand english at all, like no word at all.	Racism	Ethnicity	1/131	0.763

In my country 1 in every 20 people is romani. Of course there are exceptions, as in each and every ethnic group, but most of them are not bad people at all. It is true that they really love to party and often play loud music in the middle of the night, which is a tiny bit annoying, but overall the romani I have had the pleasure to meet are extremely nice, kind people. Unfortunately, though, here they are being heavily discriminated against, considered second-class people by some, and hearing people say death to gypsies is far from uncommon. They are the scapegoat that politicians blame for every single one of our problems to distract us from our misery while stuffing their pockets with our money. It is usually hard for them to find a well-paid job because of discrimination, so they sometimes turn to begging and/or stealing to feed their families. Then people say that they are lazy assholes who spend their time doing nothing and rely on government aid to survive and this only makes their apartheid worse.	Ethnic	Ethnicity	1/180	0.556

i'm a romanichal and many of us are good honest people for the most part but i unfortunately know many con men. i sometimes wonder what came first. did the gypsies come to europe scamming people and become hated? or did they come with good intentions only to be discriminated against and had to scam to survive because they couldn't get honest work? it's funny because here in america there aren't many poor gypsies of any sub group. the bonagee , romanichal, and ludad are all very prosperous. over here most people thought gypsies were a myth and assumed we were (depending on type of gypsy) italian, mexican, or indian. over here most of us are honest, hard working, business owners but still quite a few con men exist among us. Why does everyone hate them for nearly 1000 years? They piss people off. I'm sorry, but when people have hated them so long, there is usually a reason. In this case, they're thieves. Apparently, word has it that one of their time honored traditions is to rip every non-gypsy off they think they can get away with. They DO NOT assimilate. They marry ONLY their own in arranged marriages, as marriage to outsiders lowers them on the social scale, particularly, when the outsider is male. They DO have a central language which derived from Sanskrit (the world's OLDEST language, originating in India) three- they try work the welfare system. Of course, people will say this should be included under number one. Also, they are pigs. In Europe, one will see their property value plummet if they move next door. The reason for this is they are the biggest hoarders on the planet. They would shit up their property in no time, negatively impacting the value of YOURS. In the UK, they can't stand them.	PIGS	Southern European	1/175	0.571

x y Also irish travellers are not connected to romani/roma ppl not by language and not in genetics. But since both are nomadic ppl, like roma actually were traditionally, all kind of ppl were called by the name gypsy , simply to denote 'they're not a part of us'. Exactly like in Balkan during Ottoman empire and many folks where forced to migrate bc Ottomans were forcing Islam on Balkanians. During that time also Roma ppl were living in Balkan. However, back then all kind of folks were called cigan (gypsy) Osman , Turk . Basically anyone who converted to islam or/and invaded certain areas was called by one of these names. The word gypsy was thrown at all kind of ethnicities. Roma are an ethnicity on their own. Gypsy is a slur word. Later, during the Hippie era then a bohemian and gypsy style became a trend. The way these ppl dressed during the hippie era was and is very unrealisic compared to ethnic roma/romani pp as they never wore feathers and all kind of these trends back then. Ppl literally mixed all kind of trends (balkan, oriental, native american, etc.) and labled it as bohemian, gypsy , blah blah. Traditional clothing among roma/romani ppl is very diverse as they spread all over europe and came with many european ethnicities in contact. Roma/Romani tribes reached Europe some 1000 years ago. Their origin is somewhere between north / central india. This documentary is a mess imo.	Ethnicity	Ethnicity	1/243	0.412

in italy they live in camps, or are homeless. they don't send their 10 kids to school, even though the law obligates everyone to go to school until you are 16 years old. i'm not being racist at all, i live in a bad neighborhood, but pretty much they are the same everywhere, they send their kids to beg outside of churches, shopping centres, busy streets, the adults steal and take stuff from garbage bins to sell (everything made out of copper is promptly scavenged by them, they take clothes and sell them in markets , literally they show the stuff they found on the sidewalk to sell). when i went to elementary school we had 2 rom girls in class, they showed like 1 day and then the rest of the week were in their camps begging or stealing. where they live they burn car tires (you can see the smoke and smell the awful smell from their camps) and throw garbage everywhere, wherever they go they destroy, they get everything dirty, they assume everything is their own. to go to my girlfriend house i have to cross a bridge, under that bridge they live , they sleep, make camp fires (we are inside a big city, so it's pretty illegal) and throw garbage everywhere, there's literally a 2 meters high stack of garbage next to where they sleep, but the most disgusting thing is that they shit on the sidewalk of the bridge, so i have to walk zig-zag between their shit (30m o sidewalk with a dump every 50cm). everyone pretty much hates them, and there's a reason, multiple reasons. even if you were to give them economical support or the chance to study to get a job they prefer to beg and steal, and spend their money in beer and drugs	Racist	Ethnicity	1/303	0.33

Basically the majority practices active and open discrimination - denying them jobs or schooling - so to survive these guys are either forced to beg or steal - bingo! now you have them, now you can discriminate even more, abuse them even more! Same thing happens to African-Americans here in the US One researcher ran a little test - he sent identical resumes to employers but with just the name changed - some had mostly black names like Latisha and others had mostly white names like Karen etc - well you guessed it - the white names got calls to set up interviews Also red-lining - the practice of not selling homes to blacks in white areas - it is thru home ownership that most Americans gain wealth - well white homes gain as time goes by - the red-lined black homes decline in value! Add that to the poor funding of schools and you have what the Roma are going thru but what African-Americans have is much, much better than what the Roma have in Europe Here at least there is a willingness to correct the wrongs of the past - but not in Europe Europeans don't even try to correct the wrongs of the past - still continue to abuse these people	Black	Black	1/214	0.467

7:42 Irish Travellers aren't Romani at all. Due to a lack of written material, their origins are quite unknown but genetics show they don't belong to the Romani group and only a small part of the Jewish people came from the place we now call Israel. According to the Israeli professor of history Shlomo Sand, the great David Ben-Gurion was convinced that the Old Testament Hebrews had never moved out from Palestine and their real descendants would actually be the Palestinian still living there. Interesting theory, isn't it? Apart from these two mistakes, the video is really interesting. The Romani history is undoubtedly special. In the past centuries, they sometimes have been mistaken for Jews (and vice versa) by ignorant peasants.	Shlomo	Jewish	1/121	0.826
The Romani have always fascinated me and how they have managed to survive in all these different countries is testament to their culture and way of life. Yes I have no doubt there are some groups who are nothing but trouble but where I am from in northern England, travellers such as the Romani and the Irish travellers have even created a yearly fair where people can attend to trade with these groups of unique peoples. If they were to receive their own state it would have to be created out of either India or even Pakistan where there ancestors immigrated from and it would have to be large enough to allow them to travel as I believe the majority would still be nomadic	Nothing	Youngsters	1/124	0.806

It's pretty funny seeing USA's minorities all racing to be the no. 1 victim of the country claiming racism and discrimination, while gypsies in the eastern europe deal with their racists by force because they can. Usually prisons offers better living conditions for most that belong to the tier that I like to call as footsoldiers , the ones that do the action, the lowest tier they have. So even if they commit a serious crime, it's probably in their personal interest to get incarcerated anyway. I mean, in Romania there's no life sentence so why live on the streets when you can just go to prison, get to know others of your kind and learn from their mistakes, maybe get some new skills and tricks, and after getting out attempt to live the dream of owning a corrupted empire. Some of them, usually in the higher tiers, have some sort of code of honor. If you don't mess with them, they don't mess with you, especially if there's nothing to gain or prove wrong from that. It's the lower tier that likes to instigate and be chaotic. Which sometimes means the ones in the higher tier can just abandon them and let them be free to do what they want without any cover if they get themselves stuck in deep shit. But the moment they have a point and you don't, they will make sure both you and your family remembers it. It's true that the ones in the higher tier may have ties with giant illegal activities, but that can apply to any race of any country. They just have it easier because they have convenient access to manpower, unlike cultured majorities who usually need political sides and fake promises to achieve that. They are usually very united in their causes. Sure they have their own internal drama, and sometimes fights between their own gangs. But if something affects them	Racism	Ethnicity	1/492	0.203

Congratulations. This is a very well-written analysis. I live in a country with a vast Roma minority and a great part of my childhood I lived among them. As for a possible location of a Romaes country ... I think you're kidding. Even though the great powers of the world would agree to find such a place for a Roma state, this state would probably be never populated. As I said, I knew them well enough to say that I understood their spirit. The spirit of free people who did not like to be tied to any particular country or place or even to follow any other rules than their own local rules or customs. Even as individuals or as small groups, they can adapt to a certain place and can remain in the area for the rest of their lives, or until they are completely absorbed by the population of that region, but as a nation, they are the embodiment of the idea of migrating people, dwells or migrate where they felt better. Because, for thousands of years, they were never allowed to access these things, the notions of homeland, citizenship, or civic spirit is something that most of them can perceive only at the intellectual level not emotionally, being notions, emptied of any content, and that's why I always admired them. They are a very resilient nation that not only did not vanish throughout history (as so many other nations did), although no one loved them, but they will probably continue to last many centuries from now on. They are like water. Very hard to contain it for eternity, the water can take so many form and aspects, being almost impossible to be destroyed.	Nation	Nationality	1/286	0.35

Thank you for telling a sympathetic story of a much-suffered group. Good, bad, or indifferent, children are what parents make of them. I can't speak for all gypsies but I've met one that's a con artist He called himself art de Gaulle I was pumping gas in the gas station and he came to my window and told me his wallet got stolen and he was literally crying and he said he was from New York and he is here for a honeymoon with his wife and all his credit cards war stolen with his wallet. so me and my wife felt sorry for him and we gave him 10 and told him if he ever needed something to give us a call and i give him my business card. The next day he called me to ask me for 1500 so he can buy a ticket for him and his new bride to New York where he resides. So I told him let's meet at the hotel where he lost his wallet and when we met there I asked the security guard if it was possible to view the camera in the hallway so as to see if this man really lost his wallet. When I asked the security that question he run out of the hotel The next day he called me again to see if I had reported him to the police. So I told him to meet me somewhere I was so impressed that he is so capable of lying with no Gilt that I give him an extra 40 and told him never to bother me again I have never met someone in my whole entire life that has no guilt I looked into his eyes all I could see was Darkness I feel bad for that gypsy I hope he found Jesus. Being a gypsy myself, all of them are different. It just depends on where they live, here in America gypsies are modernize and up to date as to gypsies in romania who are more traditional, however one thing i can say is that all gypsies are united in the sense that we don't like outsiders, we do what we do because that's how we were raised and taught to, we value our family more then anyone else and to us its our culture against the world. But this won't last long, because each generation is starting to grow out of that and soon maybe 20 years from now there won't gypsies anymore well at least not in well off countries like America, (Sorry for the poor grammar.) Was at the gov't offices yesterday in Turkey with a crowd of people waiting their turn. Many Turks dress trendy so when a woman walks up wearing mis-match top skirt with socks and sandals, you know she's gypsy. Then her husband comes in talking smack to her, telling her to be pushy with the gov't workers because he apparently has a deadline for something. He then tells her that if she doesn't get it done they will give him a penalty after which she will pay for it herself. I wanted to smack him. I recently went to Bucharest. For few days I always observed the intense discrimination of Romanians against Romanis. They were totally excluded from society. And my friend who has been hosting me later told me that once during a project in a local school he saw even the legal discrimination. What he told me was frustrating. He told me there is a limit of two gypsy students per each class and its not even filled usually because romanian families pay gypsy families to not to send their kids to school, they dont want romani children to study with their children. And even if a Romani kid goes to school, scholl gives him an identity card expressing his race (I see no difference from nazis). So they cant really get educated and after the education as well, companies or institutions just don't give them jobs. And still Romanians blame Romanis for ruining their reputation .	Race	Ethnicity	1/153	0.654

They are a minority in Romania (around 3 of the Romanian population) and they live isolated by the Romanian culture. Romanian language is a romance language (language of the Roman Empire, originating from the vulgar latin) meanwhile Romani language is panjabi and their roots are coming from Northen India, they reject every single aspect of the Romanian culture and most of the times have a criminal agenda, especially theft.	Nothing	Youngsters	1/96	1.042

Let me just tell you the ways they are earning their money in Romania and Hungary (they probably do it the same way in other Eastern European countries). They usually send their kids to the city to beg for money. They also seek usable stuff in dust bins and they leave a huge mess around garbage containers and stuff. Another thing they love to do is to STEAL. One of their favourite materials is metal. They steal electricity wires, railway etc. Then they won't steal your wallet, phone etc. right? Hell no. They will. They will get it out of your pocket, they will steal your purse, backpack etc. They can even slit your throat if they want to. Another thing some of them do (which is probably the only thing they do that doesn't harm anybody) is that they go to the forest and collect mushrooms, flowers, raspberry, blueberry etc. and sell them. Most of them don't have a legal job. They get lot of money from the government (social help, kids money etc). And now let's talk about the business they do. A lot of men go to Western Europe or Hungary (from Romania), Poland etc to work . They obviously don't have a real job. They make a lot of money and come home, buy old sport cars and build castles which look horrible by the way. A lot of gipsies have vans to transport stuff. Most of them have Hungarian (especially in the region of Romania where I'm from), Polish, Bulgarian or Italian number plates. A lot of gipsies that can't read (most of them) buy their driving licence in Bulgaria and they don't even know the laws and stuff. The average age when gipsy women give birth to their first child is like 15-16, or even 13-14. If you randomly select a gypsy, the chances they are below poverty line, or don't have a highschool diploma, or can't do middle-school grade mathematics, or don't have a job, or are illiterate is MUCH MUCH higher than a randomly selected italian. Also, your premise is false, no one measures economic, career, intellectual or being a law-abiding person by whether the person stays at their family home in their youth or leaves to stay in a shitty rental. The gypsies are simply one of the lowest intelligence groups in the world. You think that has nothing to do with their economic, career, intellectual or unlawful outcomes? I mean we can talk about facts, and we can talk about how you a gypsy have certain feelings about who your people are, devoid of facts and innacurate to reality. Not everyone's the same, stop generalising. You must really hate us for writing that long hateful comment. MOST of the gypsies I KNOW have degrees, broke out from the shitty and oppressed lives they lived and aren't hurting anyone. None of the countries you mention do anything to integrate them into their society, all they do is pretend to help but really, no gypsy gets a job without being white passing (which I am, due to my mother being a white Hungarian, hence the great jobs I get - it's not fair, i know...) and even in schools they are sent to schools where teachers don't give a fuck and even the teachers themselves are racist towards little kids. These kids grow up listening to how bad their parents are, not given opportunities, bullied, then people are surprised why they quit school so soon. Once they quit school they are normally forced into situations where they have to do illegal shit to survive and feed their mum/dad. BUT you can go to Hungary, go into a gypsy household, you'll be shocked how clean they are and how welcoming they are. FKS Creative That's the cart before the horse. They have low intelligence which causes them to not get opportunities, not they get less opportunities which causes them low intelligence. You don't get dumber because you aren't offered a job. But like Farrel, you don't seem to understand, or want to, how medians work. It doesn't say anything about the individual, it says about the number of individuals. If the gypsies have an average IQ, of 74, 50 of them have IQ's under 74, 50 over, which also elucidates other things like the distribution, a group with 74 IQ will have way less people with IQ's over 130 than a group with 100 average. The fact that you have a degree and know gypsies that do means nothing to the group average, it's subjective. Infact, you would expect that if you did have higher intelligence, most other gypsies you know would too, because we live in a world of free association, and people settle in communities and social circles which represent them. But i don't think we're getting anywhere, both you and Farrel are into fantasy, you see no responsibility for the gypsy when they fail, but take all the credit when they succeed. When it's a win, it's the gypsies brilliance, when it's a fail, vastly the case, everyone else's fault. I mean you aren't even good faith communicators, you are bad faith ones, stuffing your comments with non-sequiters like muh italians have bad economy(compared to who lol, to the gypsy community they are super rich) or subjective experiences. Go read up on the veil of ignorance argument, if you could choose which ethnicity to be born, and everything else random, like sex, intelligence, wealth of family etc, no one would choose to be born a gypsy,	Ethnicity	Ethnicity	1/338	0.296

hey masaman, just wanted to make a few corrections for you. first off we pronounce our broad name rum-knee and my group rum-nah chel . also the irish travellers, although similar in lifestyle and we do intermix and marry here and there, are not ethnically romani in anyway (unless mixed). the traveller groups that are supposed to be part romani are English and lowland Scotch travellers although they probably existed as a group before we arrived in the British isles and mixed. also most real Romani's wouldn't want their own country (at least not us in America) because unfortunately some of the stereotypes are true for some of us. my family have been honest businessmen for generations but i do know many con men. if a con man gypsy lived in a country full of his own people who he doesn't want to con or can't con because they know the deal, how would he survive? while more and more of us (the majority at this point) work honestly and follow the teachings of Jesus pertaining to morality we have a strong distrust for police and government. it's hard to tell at this point what came first, gypsy distrust of authority or the persecution towards Romani's. i know many people on here have stories and bad experiences with Romani's and i don't doubt them. I will say that we much more honest here in America and here we are no more criminal than another ethnic group that gets painted with a broad brush, the Italians. I do hear in Europe Romani crime is much more rampant. I won't excuse their bad behavior but I do wonder if it's in part due to them being stereotyped and not given honest jobs as often. here in America most people just think (depending on the complexion of the individual) we are either Italian, Greek, or	Ethnic	Ethnicity	1/339	0.295

At some time in India’s past, there were great social and political upheavals. A class-based religion called Varna Dharma was founded by brahmins and a warrior-class ordained as Kshatriyas began to carve out kingdoms of their own by conquering ancient democratic states and displacing entire populations from their homelands. These were times of tremendous oppression and genocide. These populations sought refuge in other lands. Any unwanted and homeless people who are driven out of their homelands will naturally become segregated and end up in poverty and criminality. Thus emerged the untouchable classes of India. Evidently, the Romanis or Gypsies are from these native people of the Indian subcontinent who fled their motherlands in times of great turmoils. A large segment of the Naga people of Indian subcontinent have become untouchables under this Varna religion (mistakenly referred as hinduism). If you came across names like naga among the Gypsies Romanis, you can be sure that they are of Indian origin. Recently, Gypsies in Europe rallied under the name of Dr. B.R. Ambedkar, a great intellectual who drafted the Constitution of India and laid the foundation of national currency the Reserve Bank. He himself was from an 'untouchable' class. I am originally Iraqi and Iraq had its share of gypsies. However, they are famous for being dancers. It was Saddam Hussein who gave them the Iraqi nationality. We call them 'Kawoliya.' The only negative thing in terms of reputation I heard when I was a kid is that they allegedly used to kidnap beautiful girls so they can be raise them as dancers or future prostitutes or whatever. The majority of them can't be educated,they bully the people that don't live like them, they love to live in poor conditions,they are lazy and don't work, they beg and steal from other people,etc. They don't have respect for others and care just about them. Don't belive me? If you gonna visit Bucharest in the future do a visit in the Ferentari neighborhood.(just wach your back to not be robbed) The worst part at least here in Romania is that instead of being assimilated by the population they assimilate the normal Romanians, many Romanian families just blended together with gypsies adopting their miserable lifestyle. My mother is Romanian, and while I've heard many stories I was able to educate myself in America about the Romani people. My father is American. Growing up here, it was evident that there was a big problem with racism. I quickly made the connection between how black Americans, native people, and immigrants are treated here and how Romani people are treated in Romania. I'm Romanian from Moldova though people often tell me I don't have a European face. The hate towards Romani/gypsy people stems from Antonescu style dictatorship (in Romania) mentality or soviet influences (for post USSR countries). All of that mixed with strict gun laws in Europe (Romania has the strictest gun laws in the world) is a recipe for racism because if any person would shit in one's garden in the US, he has a good chance of getting shot and going to the hospital in the best case. That is just not something that can happen in Europe because of common sense gun control bullshit. Until Europeans learn to accept everyone regardless where they come from and learn basic self protection there will be toxic hate, snobbism and cosmopolitanism forever. Whining over Romani people is just a scapegoat just like complaining over migrants from Syria/Lybia which were colonized by major European powers. Of course the hate towards Romani in Romania is also mixed with conservatism around marijuana and LGBT and ultra orthodox nationalism rolling around Dughin style ideology. Life is suffering, pain and misery.	Racism	Ethnicity	1/184	0.543

So i did read here a few almost racist comments and i agree and disagree with most of them :). On one hand, u have ur dirty romas living in tents, or ruins almost houses, in some camps or little villages created on a land that doesnt belongs to them, the land has their owners etc. we here called them if the translation is correct, colonies or settlements (just this simple). I mean those type of romas wont even clean up their own mess, theyll rather live in filth then do something about it. This is often because their children wont attend school or if they do, they do it pretty leniently i mean, sparsely they attend classes etc. At home they do nothing and sadly its just goes in circles, what i mean is that a solution for this a way out if u will is too hard to make, cause of their willingness to change their ways. People where i live most of the time want nothing else just them to live as in 21st century one should. They either refuse f nothings to be gained doing so or wont even listen to what do u have to say. They specialize for social help from the state and live from that. Some of them steal (thats sadly true) some of them even do murder or what they like to do, steal dogs for meat and fat, cause its some kind of remedy (they believe it is, well some of them do). These people barely speak native language in that state where im from. I dont really hate them im just telling how it is. This is the first group uneducated scum u could say although its not really their fault at least not the children, their parents on the other hand. As i was mentioning its a neverending circle until they decide change is needed. Luckily there are now a few examples of this change, building their own houses, buying that land for the house to be built on	Racist	Ethnicity	1/963	0.104

Regarding the question if the Gypsies/Romani could establish a state of their own I'd say impossible. First of all the number of Gypsies/Romani in countries like Bulgaria and Turkey is much higher than recognized. One reason for this is because some Gypsies identify as Turks or Bulgarians and due to their own nation forging concerns both host countries welcome this. However, similar to the case mentioned for Romanians in the video, average Bulgarian also does not like it when a Romani claims to be an ethnic Bulgarian. In fact the situation is so complex that in Bulgaria there are Bulgarian Gypsies who speak Bulgarian only, Turkish Gypsies who speak Turkish, and other Gypsies who have their own languages. Some of these Bulgarian Gypsies will admit they are Gypsies and others will claim to be ethnic Bulgarians. The same is also true for the Turkish Gypsies in Bulgaria who speak Turkish and some of them claim to be ethnic Turks while the rest will admit to being part of the millet . However the situation is different in Turkey where the Gypsies are more integrated. There are Gypsies who admit they are Roman but their numbers are dwarfed by comparison to those Romans who claim to be ethnic Turks and the rest of the population has no issues with it. They know it and don't care. Still, there's no excuse for dishonesty. Irish travellers are ethnically identical to other Irish people and have no racial connections to European Romani gypsies, virtually all of whom are of direct Indian descent. Apart from originating outside Europe, with a small number of exceptions, there are no comparisons that can be made with Jews in terms of culture, lifestyle, achievements and contributions to European life and civilization. The shared hatred of Jews and Gypsies is a more complex issue. There are some similarities but also many significant differences. Jews are often hated for seemingly being too successful and influential in a wide range of fields. Nothing like this is generally said of Gypsies, whose main claim to fame is gypsy music in some countries and a great prevalence for being violent street beggars and thieves in virtually all societies in which they live,	Nothing	Youngsters	1/137	0.73

My friend your ignorance is amazing. Romani (i. e. Gypsies, nomads from the Indian subcontinent) are NOT similar to Romanians (i. e. Descendants of the Roman empire and of the Dacian civilisation) and never will be. So you saying Romani are similar to Romanians is very disingenuous, historically and ethogenetically FALSE and extremely offensive and insulting to Romanians.	Indian	Native-American	1/58	1.724
Romanians are similar to romani, even they have houses, hospitals, schools. Is that an insulting to romanians? There is always an romanian saying something bad about gypsies, then why many of you are living and behave just like some gypsi? All you want is to make a good and false image for you, romanians. many Gypsy families have been left in the field under the open sky, what do you think it can be improved in their lives? the Romanians only begged respect outside the country, but the Gypsies are discriminated at every step, no matter how they try not to disturb anyone and lead a normal life. In Turkey, the most common word for gypsy people is ingene pronounced like chingan considered as a derogatory word. Roman is the politically correct way to say it. They are highly discriminated and marginalized, associated with criminal activities and poverty in almost every region in Turkey, however, their culture has a great impact on Turkish culture. In almost every wedding ceremony regardless of class, you would hear a Roman Havas song which is a specific naming for Romani music. They commonly appear as comedic reliefs in tv/media but also represented as easy-going, fun, lively and gifted people, especially in music. There are many Roman singers and musicians in Turkey and they are praised. I hope that they will be able to represent themselves in the political arena soon to end their longtime poverty and reliance on crime.	Common	Working class	1/137	0.73

I am sorry for Romani people because they had been target of racism in Europe for centuries. Minorities were always targeted in old times. But I surprised when saw so negative comments in this modern time over here. From some words from their language it is clear that they have some relation with India and Pakistan region. May be Rajistan, India or Sindh / South Punjab in Pakistan where in sub desert area people used to be nomads. Probably they kept moving and reached Europe. I am of Hungarian decent and my family is from the Hungarian - Czechoslovakian boarder area. My family came to the USA during WWI and settled in Braddock, PA near Pittsburgh via Ellis Island. My Grandfather moved to Chicago in the late 1930's and I was born in Chicago. I never understood why many of my family members considered themselves Gypsies. They wear it like a badge of honor and that has always been unsettling to me since my mother wasn't to keen on the Gypsy connotation. We didn't hang out with them a lot since they are so darned clannish and really different from other people. I mean really clannish, nobody gets in if you aren't family. Really weird for me. Having done my DNA test to fond out what the hell I really am made of, I was astonished to find my blood has origins of central Asia, primarily in northern India. But also a mix of Iberian Peninsula and British Isles blood as well. So, being the mutt that I am, I understand the whole thing as well, being a Gypsy descendant and it isn't a bad thing at all. It's not about what they do, but why they do it. Back in the Soviet union gypsies had the same success as ethnic Bulgarians. They were part of society and did speak Bulgarian like anyone else. I am Bulgarian and I can say for sure, there is nothing that we hate more than those dirty gypsies! They are protected by EU laws and they do whatever they want. They steal and rape and have 3-4 houses each. They make 5 babies and drug them so they can go to the streets and beg pretending to be homeless. I had many in my old neighbourhood, so I used to follow them to see what they do, they lived in houses that I can only dream of, close to caravans and scrap yards. You cannot go in their villages, unless you have a death wish. They don't go to jail, even if they did, they have more than enough money to bail themselves. The worse part is that, they go to other EU countries and do the same, but they don't say they are gypsies but they say they are Bulgarian. So they go and steal and do bad things and take benefits for the countless children that they have! And the result is that other countries think all Bulgarians are like that and no one wants us anywhere. I actually live in England because I don't feel safe in my own country. Many people don't believe that I am Bulgarian, they say I am too white to be Bulgarian. Because Bulgarian people rarely emigrate, mostly the gypsies and Turks do, pretending to be Bulgarian. So the rest of the EU doesn't really know us. I wish these gypsies never existed, their sheer existence has made my life very difficult and a living hell!	Old	Over 65s	1/266	0.376

Tony Ofarrell Retarded is anyone who believes that gypsies here have the romantic charm that Hollywood portrays in that ethnic group. It is the black people in the usa that are truly segregated and oppressed. In BG, the communist regime actually managed to integrate gypsies into the society to some extent - gave them free housing, jobs and forced them to go to school. After the regime collapsed, the roma people withdrew and started building their own ghettos and abandoned the society - they don't want to live nearby us. Recent governments tolerate that because the aituation makes gypsies easy to manipulate during elections and also supplies immense amount of EU funds for the gypsy integration program (that does not achieve anything). Can you please elaborate the honesty part? My ethnic group is full of scumbags too but at least we try to build a normal society.	Ethnic	Ethnicity	1/147	0.68
I though you would talk a bit more about the gypsies in Spain, where their culture has had a lot of influence in Spanish identity, which now sees them as a cultural value, but distinguishes between the Romanian Romani which is a newer migration in Spain, but that lives more on the margins of society. Andalucia and the south of Spain actually identify themselves as heirs to the gypsy culture. It is interesting how in a Nation State like Spain the Gypsy culture has been taken as their unique and most particular identity.	Gypsy	Roma	1/93	1.075

When you research a culture as old as this one, you shouldn't use modern boarders like calling them South Asian, it's meant to confuse as well as conceal the truth. India is one of Origins but did you know that there used to be a river that connected Israel to India it was destroyed but you can very easily tie the Romani and Israel's together which is why I believe there are lost tribe of Israel	Old	Over 65s	1/95	1.053

You pronounce Romany wrong. Also, we have higher levels of incrimination, but not cos we are criminals on a higher level. To think any race has a higher propensity for crime than any other race is highly ignorant. Also, showing the gypsy weddings show photo is offensive. That show was made by white people based on Irish Traveller culture, and they created the dresses and other b.s. on that show. It has nothing to do with us, legitimately. I looked over a book called Bury Me Standing Up by a gypsy. I saw a movie The King of the Gypsies about a gypsy with local connections here about 1990. In Germany (and no racism here, as you might think), there was a sign put up on the border to poland, pointing out no gypsies welcome, entering is punishable by death . This was pre-Hitler, under Imperial Law, which wasn't racist, compared to England or the US etc at that time. My great grandmother, whose family lived near the boarder, nevertheless, was kidnapped as a child (ca 4 years old) by a group of Romani . The miller from the next village, which was approx. 5 miles away, saw her sitting and crying on a cart driven by the Romani and noticed her as being the daughter of one of his costumers, so she was able to be brought back by the townsmen. I do not think this was a custom, but kind of a reason why those nomadic people were prosecuted in such a harsh way back then in more civilized areas. I still remember her resemblances, which might be partially wrong after such a long time, but definetly they are chilling! Nowadays, of course, things changed, and the Tsigani or gypsies are a more or less ormalaccepted minority within most parts of Europe - but back then, things were different, and as I might suggest, not only exaggerated by our ancestors	Racist	Ethnicity	1/211	0.474

Lots of haters here. Violence and discrimination on the rise in Europe, so sad. There is no need for Roma to create their own ethnic nation. Indian government will give them citizenship to protect them. Foreign minister has stated that they are welcome in the land of their distant ancestors. I see the usual racist idiocy, basing an attitude to an entire diverse people to a relatively few anecdotes. Did any of the perverts below actually listen to this video? The Rom are often outsiders and some groups descend into theft, chicanery and begging. If the same demographic were applied as with other groups, I'm sure crime rates would not be significant. Let me give an anecdote myself. Most of my tribe settled in England between the wars, but I remade contact with Rom in the south of France and Northern Spain who are devout Christians and maintain a high moral code. I have Mitochondrial DNA from 46 countries from India, Iran through to Libya, Portugal, Italy and every country of Europe bar a few from the southern Urals to the Faro Isles as well as Rom. I am certain this diversity has given me many advantageous attributes. I am grateful to my Rom ancestors to their commitment to freedom and openness to other cultures and ethnicity and the spread of ideas and creativity.	Ethnicity	Ethnicity	1/174	0.575

I am Romanian too,! my 2 cents:There are more than one kind of gypsies,: Gypsies from large cities, and the rest,nomads ,metal workers,jewelry makers. The only ones i was a victim of were the city,non nomad gypsies. They are the most numerous and most criminal group of people. I was attacked,in 1967 twice, by group of gypsies,5 or more(i was only 17),and use to travel from , high school in Pantelimon,to POdul Constanta din Bucuresti. I was working in construction,and went to school,(liceu),in the evening ,at Liceul Al Sahia ,(Pantelimon),and sleep at working people dormitory,at,Podul Constanta. The gypsies,were hiding in some woods next to ,the tram way station,and when i come down ,from tramway, at 11 pm, Nobody else ,only me, they will jump on me,and 2 of them hold my hands,one for every hand,and the rest of them check pockets and take anything of value,Money watch etc, and ,in a couple of seconds they run away . Of course I will fight them every time, but they won,the way i told you,about blocking my arms. One of this 2 attacks one of them hit me in the head with a heavy piece of wood,and for the first and last time in my life i have seen all kind of blue,red and white stars for a few seconds. I do not hate gypsy people as an ethnicity,but surely,a large percentage of them ,living in large cities,have a very criminal way of life,and refuse to do honest work,for a living. They are no Robin Hood,they will attack rich ,or poor ,if the conditions are in their favor. I am in America since 1982,and never been attacked,only once 3 young black tugs tried to take my bicycle,but i was ready for that fight and it was day time so,they did not go on with it. Other wise,the tugs here broke my car window once, stole one	Ethnicity	Ethnicity	1/442	0.226

-I am fascinated when seeing documentaries about other non-white, lesser known ethnic groups. We always hear of the struggles of blacks, Puerto Ricans, Mexicans, Native Americans, darker Asians by oppressive racist whites. But we almost never hear of these other somewhat isolated ethnics. And considering that if you turned the tables had the oppressive whites forced into poverty for generations instead of darker ethnics, you would see THEM the whites, committing the crimes usually associated by the deprived ethnics. Even though some do. There is NO group on this planet that is above such illegal actions, inspite of what some want to say think. If another racist, oppressive group in power were to deny whites the same fair opportunities as those in power then you would see white-committed crimes. Most likely in Europe, these people will get the bad treatment discrimination.	Ethnic	Ethnicity	1/144	0.694

Imma be honest with you Tone, the gypsies do need a final solution, by the states they are more prevalent in, namely the Balkans - I say Romania Serbia and Bulgaria combine forces and land and give them out a small territory with out of their own ones where they can resettle and start exiling each and every one of their gypsies in said territory effectively creating their own nation state, of course this would all be forcefully done, as neither the gypsies nor their defenders in the face of overtly oligarchic ruling classes in those Balkan states would simply embrace that idea and comply willingly. After all, the politicians have a huge mass of one way voters, who do not regard the ideas and solutions of the politicians they are voting for and the gypsies in themselves rejoice with their living costs all covered by the working white majority but that's just me, aint it. vitellone al vapore Exactly! That would be a pointer to mass liberals and tolerance propagators, that the Gypsy people as a whole are exclusively welfare queens and leech off of the main indigenous population of the country they are currently residing in. These, in turn, would give the contributor countries the much needed justification they can get, in order to use any means necessary for the integration, reintegration respectively of the Gypsy closed-off communities and structural societies, be it forceful or through the direct application of the law, without the definite intervention of third party civil rights protection NGOs or other disarrangement on the so-called basis of racial prejudice activists. My point being, wherever I've gone, they are under protection off of the law due to their racial background and the same laws do NOT apply to them, as they do to us, reasons being unconsequented bribery of officials , fear of being deemed racist or any other vaguely formed principle. I have had encounters with them a couple of times in Azerbaijan, my home country. They're mostly just beggars as far as I've seen, but I remember one encounter best. I was going back home from an extra preparatory lesson, and I held my hat in my hand. I was with with my mom, and when we turned a corner, I dropped my hat. When I looked back I saw nothing on the ground. There were a ton of people, but a gypsy beggar with her child was sitting on the ground. My mom luckily saw what happened, and demanded that the kid give my hat back. She reluctantly did, and we moved away fast. My mom warned me to always be careful next to them. What I got from this was that, they don't mind stealing at all, and they teach their kids how to do it at an early age. I don't wanna hate on an entire race so quickly, but all of my encounters with them has been negative.	Race	Ethnicity	1/172	0.581

Let me give you an example: a decade ago I lived in a mixed neighborhood that is, one which was half gentrified and half poor. There was a homeless crackhead wandering my neighborhood that I enjoyed chatting with. I had a crashed car in my driveway that was technically totaled because of a bent chassis, but the interior was in good shape and so was almost everything under the hood. I gave him the key to the car so he could sleep in it, and he slept in it for weeks. One day he asked me if he could sell the car battery for some pocket money. Sure, go ahead. Then one day, I came home from work and the car was gone. I freaked out. I found him down the block and he told me, I saw some people towing the car away. I thought the landlords called a tow company. I made him give me the name of the tow company and he gave it to me. I called them and demanded they bring back my car. They were like, Well, an older man 'sold' it to us, and he had the key so we didn't think anything of it. I asked what he looked like. Tall, skinny - oh, wait, that's him over there! Walking up the street! It was the crackhead. You know how much he sold my car for? 60 USD. I got one of my biggest, fattest, strongest male friends to chase him down and tell him that if he ever showed his face on my street again, he would kick his ass. And I do not regret it.	Skinny	Physical Features	1/275	0.364

most of the travellers have english surnames,they are the leftovers from english armies sent to put down rebellions in ireland over the centuries.after the campaigns were over they were left to their own devices and a lot ended up as wandering bands.the myth has grown around them that they were the old gaelic chiefs that were dispossessed this is a load of bullshit some even changed their names from an english to irish name EG greene in county kerry to mcdonagh so that they might fit in better,especially when the english infuence was no longer there.other traveller names are stoke,maughen,hutchinson,mackinley who were scottish mercenaries .so they are most definately not 100 irish. A good friend of mine has another friend, who as a small child was a blonde toe-head and was nearly kidnapped by supposed gypsies here in Omaha, Nebraska, heartland of the Midwest. She was simply walking down the street with her mother in their neighborhood in the 1970s and out of nowhere came a Cadillac, Lincoln or some other large luxury car that pulled up alongside them and a scary-looking dark-complected woman opened the car door and tried to snatch the little girl. The friend's mother swears that it was gypsies in the car. And over in a small farming town in Iowa in the 1930s and 40s, my ex-husband's grandmother and her siblings were warned by their mother not to go down to the gypsy caravan that would show up once a year down by their small town's railroad tracks. They never knew where these gypsies came from or where they went, but the great-grandma was always fearful one of the children would be kidnapped.	Gypsy	Roma	1/166	0.602

joanne gomo i'm english romanichal and truth be told (my people don't like to admit it) we are barely romani anymore. real romani's look like indians. while we look exotic to people, we range from blonde hair blue eyes all the way to indian but most look kinda sicilian, or, greek, or mexican. when our people went to england we found the circus people and the native traveller population and started intermarrying. we still mix quite a lot, my wife is a traveller. that's why even some real romani's look white to you. Ben Barber pretty good bub. us english romnichals mixed more with indigenous scottish travellers (mostly lowland travellers but sometimes highland) and carneys than the irish but it did happen too. in america we all started mixing again about 30 years ago. the irish value men much more than women so a romani man marrying an irish traveller woman is much more common than an irish traveller man marrying a romani woman. my wife is an english traveller but to my people we consider them scotch, which they aren't very happy about. the lore is that these english travellers are pretty much a 50/50 mix of lowland scotch and romanichal. they use a mix of our language and the traveller language. it's a pretty interesting thing to research, there are so many sub groups with interesting history. the black dutch for example, they have a very mysterious origin and now the few families left have assimilated into the romanichal culture and intermarry with us.	Common	Working class	1/163	0.613

joanne gomo well i did a 23 and me dna test and the results were 40 south asian and the rest european. both my haplo groups were also gypsy groups. so i understand what you are saying and it's true to some point. on the other hand we have a distinct language that is almost mutually intelligible with punjabi (i could have the wrong indian language), our own culture and lifestyle, and we have certain physical characteristics distinct to us. for example, i went to visit friends in the mid west (i'm from ny) and when i got into their town, all the people i interacted with at gas stations and restaurants kept asking me if i'm related to my friends even though i wasn't with them and i never met the people asking. i would also compare us ashkenazi jews. while they are obviously different from the ancient israeli's they share common dna markers and cultural customs. would you say they aren't really jews? i do make a distinction from the rom of central europe and my people from the british isles, but the fact that we (gypsies as a whole) migrated across the entire world and still exist as a culture at all is pretty amazing. while very different in many ways i met many gypsies from spain, hungary, mexico, netherlands, and we all share at least some traits.	Common	Working class	1/231	0.433

As far as I know, the Roma are the only nomadic people in Europe, for centuries now even, which leads to a lot of prejudice towards them. I'm not saying they don't steal, I'm saying that our entire continent doesn't have any native non Christian religion or language anymore, and that comes at price: systemic prejudice and suspicion. Let's face it, we still behave like the late asshole part of the Roman Empire. Thieving has always been a symptom of poverty, Europe has never been very tolerant towards the different or poor. And I'm being serious here: how do we expect this people to get jobs and pay taxes if they don't have the same values as us? To pay taxes you must be a citizen but they're nomadic and not bound by a country or nation. You can't get a job or an education without a minimum of documentation, which allows you to get benefits and nothing else. I am just as prejudiced as any other European against Roma, i am not going to pretend otherwise. When in a real situation, my fear kicks in and I want nothing to do with them. And because of that, I try very hard to learn about them. My country is full of manipulative power hungry politicians who will use my personal faults and fears against me, and they can fuck off. I've had my own negative experiences involving Romani while living in Europe as a kid. But with that said I feel like everything is reciprocal, society in general has never valued the Romani as a people, when you treat a people as less than human a stigma emerges where the specific group seen as valueless (specifically those part of a diaspora which leaves them unsure of their own history) begins treating eachother as without value. So if you don't even value people within your own community or even family etc. then why would you value others outside of your community? Why value assimilation into a culture that rejects and treats you like garbage? It's a giant run-around that seems to feed itself over and over until nobody even thinks why someone is acting the way they are, all they know is they hate eachother and don't care enough to see the world from where eachother stands. I am from sri lanka and we had Gypsies with Indian origin. We called them Ahikuntika and they were dirty and lived in one place for maximum of 2 weeks. They were walking by foot from one area to another with their children, women and dogs. Those women had a strange ability to read palms and once they made their camp for two weeks in a place, women tend to walk in to our villages (usually two women at a time) for palm reading. We gave them a coconut, or 10 rupees for a reading those days. We never let them in to the house. But i have never seen their present generation or a gypsy camp from a long time. It seems they have vanished and their children have spreaded and have become workers in the cities where the small jobs are available. During 80s, when i was a child, they came few times a year and those women were quick, sexually alluring and cunning.	Gypsy	Roma	1/168	0.595

I've only ever had two experiences with Gypsies. 1st was as a child in France visiting my grandparents every summer. Sometimes we'd notice a whole bunch of them show up out of nowhere and set up camp on the soccer field in the village not far from my grandparents house. Of course it prevented anyone from using the soccer field for the week or so that they were there. During that time you would see them skulking around the village stealing all sorts of stuff. Then once they were gone the soccer field was a total mess with garbage strewn everywhere and the grass all ripped up. 2nd was here in Canada when a few years ago some Gypsies started coming over from Romania and Slovakia. They would run various scams in Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa....maybe elsewhere too. I had an old Gypsy man with two plastic bags filled with groceries , which were made to be ridiculously heavy and he'd come ask ask in an incomprehensible gibberish to help him carry his bags, which I did since I will always help the elderly, and then after walking a few feet away a younger guy slipped out from behind a wall and got behind me to try to pick my pocket. I caught on to him quickly enough to prevent it.	Elderly	Over 65s	1/220	0.455

As much as I hate racism and judging a person based on something they didn't choose and just happened to be born into, every single encounter I have had with these people has been negative. I was stuck on a train with a bunch of gypsy kids recently who shouted inappropriately sexual and racist things to me and my friends. I have been pickpocketed by gypsy women who were asking for charity for the deaf when I was more naive to their scams and I've witnessed and heard of countless other examples of their disrespectful behaviour. IDK as a gypsy myself, i can tell you're very uneducated in what you're talking about. Yes it is a fact that some gypsies AND ciganes steal and do crime. But they are not the same. It's like calling belgium and poland the same country. No disrespect towards you at all 3. Im just simply saying that there is more crime in poorer countries than in richer ones. I am a gypsy in norway and none of my family or the others i know steal or do shit like that. we get an education, work honest, and act like we belong to the community. But yes, there is some people that do things like sending their children out begging for money, and robs. But you can't say that everyone does. it. Worst kind of people by far... They mutilate and drug their own children so they can make more money by begging on the streets. It is also common theme among them to rent the kid for a day so they can beg on intersections when the red light is on.Bigger children are less expensive than the small ones because small ones can be carried around with ease. I have so many gypsy stories from Greece going back decades. Did you know that the reason many gypsy children curse at you is because they believe it's like reciting an incantation to put a curse on you?. Oh and for all the westerners who are clueless about gypsies and want to defend them the curses they uses usually involve your mothers vagina . No I'm not kidding you. It's common for a 10 year old gypsy boy to face a crowd of adults and yell at the top of his lungs that, the vagina that spawned you is from a whore who fucked a dog..... With the intent to pronounce a curse on those offspring he is saying this to.	Old	Over 65s	1/120	0.833

I am romanian and gypsy too. And I am educated and upper middle class. However I knew a bunch of gypsy kids, who lived with their dad in one of those buildings that are own by the gouvernement, around the area where my mother's hair salon is located. And despite the fact that the drunken, unemployed lunatic refused to send them to school and beat them in public and forced them to beg so he could get drunk, the authorities wouldn't interfear. Tony Ofarrell Oh take off the rose tinted glasses and grow up. An intermittent eductucation up to the age of 12, is next to useless. Anyone saying differently deserves the title of, idiot. It certainly is a problem for many Roma parents when their daughters turn 12. It's even more of a problem for the girls because they've reach marrying age. Many girls of this age, are bartered off as brides within the Roma community. This type of behaviour is totally unacceptable. These unfortunate girls have had their childhood stolen from them. They have to endure years of statutory rape. There is no place for this type of backward culture within a modern society. Gypsies are raised to be criminals. Just like many black people are in the United States. I have lived in both Portugal and the United States and of course that there are similarities. People act as if ethnic groups have their own ways of thinking because of different genes but we're all human and logic and reasoning apply to every ethnic group. The lack of education plus the community incentive for crime fosters a really bad way of thinking. That and the they don't like us because we're a different people bullshit. Romani is a neologism invented(in Romania, hence their unoriginal invention) this century(21st), and they never called themselves roma until extremely recently(and most of them, like the turkish gypsies, still do not use it), and they did call themselves gypsies, due to their mythos of being from egypt. Romanians are NOT similar at all with the romani . Romanians are genetically 43 slavic, 20 daco-roman, 17 different anatolian groups(including turkic and greek), and a bunch of other south-european and central-european additions, with some 7 migratory siberian groups. NOTHING to do with the indians. Thanks for the ignorance though. The distinction is there because it is reality. Romanian is also a latin language. The haplogroup studies are out, and it was never an honest intellectual question if the romani and romanians are closely related. They are also indian. I don't understand the south asian decription. It's the Indian subcontinent for a reason. One other important detail which was missed is that they all came in one wave of migration, so they are at the root one ethnicity. There are indeed other groups which are called gypsies, which have nothing to do with the indian gypsyes, and are basically slavic groups or from the russian steppes, like turkic groups, but that is an historical coincidence of language, describing many non-sedentary groups with the same word. I dont know who teached you to argue like this but you cannot argue properly. What does all this shit you talked about have to do with spirituality? Spirituality is the opposite of what you just wrote about. It has NOTHING to do with history. It has only to do with finding who YOU are. You are NOT your body and you are DEFINETLY NOT your ancestors history or what ever bongo they have played on. You have just proven my point. And in regards of giving you evidence or a proper source to when Gypsies or their ancestors have came to Europe and settled down, I cant but neither can you. Why? Because our history books are no real history books. They are books of war. They dont tell anything about why some groups migrated the way they did, they dont tell who contributed what to society. They only talk about who killed who and the VERY recent history also involved inventions etc, but its a new phenomenon because Europeans destroyed so much ancient knowledge in the past that we barely know anything. I wish you best luck improving yourself. You have a small identity which causes your intelligence to work against yourself (producing bad experiences based on outside events). Until you realize that you are the entire cosmos because everything you see is projected within yourself and not outside, you will finally start to become spiritual.	Nothing	Youngsters	1/238	0.42

And I could give you reliable sources to why I think they came around 10.000 years ago the first time but I cannot recall the age in which Europeans had adopted tons of Asian culture, I just remember that their unifying symbol used to be a minotaur. Fleacuri! to call in question inspiration because of it, is to put what an error in copying would produce, in competition with all the moral and spiritual evidence of divine power, manifest in the whole contents of the book itself, and in its effects in the world for ages. It is so falsely measuring the intrinsic importance of evidence, and the character of proof, that the person rejecting the scriptures because of it would prove nothing but his own incompetency to measure evidence. A book two thousand years old has a mistake in a sentence, which the omission of a word entirely rectifies, without changing anything-a word very likely to creep in. We used to call them gypsies but since some time, that is considered offensive. Now throughout the world they are called romani The name of 'romani is a mistake, and it makes confusion between the gypsies of indian descent and the romanians who are native people of SE Europe, citizens of Romania.	Indian	Native-American	1/51	1.961
Gypsies are originally from Iran, Pakistan and are Aryan just like the Germans, Austrians, Scandinavians, British peoples but are not Slavic, Armenian or Greek. Gypsies came to Europe with the army of Alex. the Great who came back home. The Macedonians took the Greek habit, fun about dancing boys and imported the Gypsies in mass for their Bards, Whore houses in Greek cities of the times. In Ancient Greek times women were much more sequestered, hidden than the Taliban do today!. Ancient Greece was the Saudi Arabia of its time for women!. That's why they imported fun boys!. To be penetrated by a Gypsy man was seen in Ancient Greece something philosophical, they philosophized very much as we know now. That's how we got philosophy thanks to gypsy boys from Armenia in those days. Armenia doesn't have Gypsies anymore because it became Hayastan in the west named Armenia.	Gypsy	Roma	1/141	0.709

when i lived in europe, back in the 90s for a year, and in the mid-2000s for another year and a half, I always heard it pronounced RO-ma-ni (with emphasis on the first syllable) rather than ro-MA-ni, as it's pronounced in the video.. but very interesting topic! always been fascinated by people and groups of people that are geographically far removed from their ethnic roots.. perhaps because, as a white man born and raised in asia, I can identify with being a cultural oddity. thanks for the video! I see so many people hating on the Roma. I have a couple of Roma friends (and call themselves that). One is a university professor in bio-chemistry and another is a household patriarch in the heartland. Both have found that the younger generations, while still connected to family/culture, are pressing themselves into modern US society with ease. The Roma professor likes to engage his Indian and some Pakistani Students with a language game. They get all flustered and laugh when their words match or have roots with one another. My experiences have been so far so good. I believe it is more of a persecution thing with popular culture than isolationist tendencies. Immigrants to a new land who do not know the language then attempt to become part of society while balancing family and cultural heritage. Boy, where does that sound familiar? Oh, yes, these United States of America and almost all Ethnic groups that have come in the last couple of centuries. That's a whole broad topic for another day considering how many cultures are clashing now with homogeneous melding with multi-cultural lifestyles as technology connects us to our roots. The truth is 99 of them don't want to get integrated in the local society, the ones who make an attempt to integrate have to hide that from the majority since they will be stigmatised by their own people. In the past in Romania they were skilled craftsmen in metal working, but with developing of industry, vast majority of them don't work anymore and prefer to practice other trades, from begging to organised crime. They travel in groups and stick with each other if they get into trouble with Romanians they are very aggressive, assaulting them verbally until the poor guy prefer to walk away (after they tried to stole his wallet or something). Calling the police on them is useless since they are moving to another zone after one incident, unless you want to spend valuable time on the police station. They have low regard for human life, they sell their children between them in marriage at from very low age, and they multiply like rabbits (one children means income and leverage in front of law, not responsibility). I used to work on Police Special Forces when I was younger and we had to raid a gypsy house in a gypsy ghetto. It was about a case of human trafficking. We entered the big house (almost like a palace) they were sleeping on the floor with horses indoors (they love their horses) and after we took the persons of interests the women started the show. They didn't care about the guns aiming they had to be immobilised aswell. One of them had a children sucking at her breast and used him as a throwing weapon at me from 5 meters, I was lucky to catch him. Robert Coates There is no way to collect data ,they are refusing to cooperate as long as it doesnt involve money making trough easy ways. The highest legal job I've seen a gypsy have in my 25 years of living in Romania was a street cleaner. I'm sure there are better gypsies across the Ocean , but they are for sure the minority that if I were to judge by the numbers explained in the video make maybe 10 of the whole population. It's so easy to find a bad gypsy example that all you have to do is walk on a street with a slightly visible gypsy population and wait to be somehow initiated in some fortune telling how the video would say. I think the most discusting moment I had to see was when my uncle had to dodge hitting a gypsy 5 year old with the car. He was visibly pushed in front of the road by his older brother. If we would of hit the kid the crowd of gypsies would then try to blackmail us. NOT CALL THE POLICE because we killed the kid, but blackmail us for money like they did before with other unfortunate drivers.	Old	Over 65s	1/202	0.495

Heather Leigh I agree that crime permeates any culture and any race, but in the US for example, statistics show that in black and Hispanic communities, crimes are higher than in white communities. Now I could try to find a reason for this, especially regarding black communities, in the fact that, after slavery was abolished, they were still segregated and not given equal chance to a proper education and jobs so, over the generations they resorted to violence and crime to make ends meet. This behavior entrenched itself into their culture and now, when they would have equal opportunities, they still self segregate and whenever one of them tries to make something out of themselves and abandon this lifestyle of crime and violence, by going for higher education and trying to get a decent job, they are judged by their own community as 'acting white'. Gypsies are a true part of European Christian culture. In France they are the most christian group within the population. In Romania - the name comes from the Roman Empire, not from Romi - they used to follow locally existing churches and cultures. This is why some of them are Romanian orthodox christians, others speak Hungarian and there is even a tiny group of German lutheran Gypsies in Northern Transylvania. This is changing, as many Gypsies now go to neoprotestant free churches, where they are treated as equals, not as bystanders. This minority's fate seems to be a feudalistic system, where the ones on top get super rich and have extreme power over the common Gypsy. This can have a very positive side, if someone like the old Gipsy king Cioba is busy in improving the situation of his people. But it can also be negative, if a clan boss - in Romania called Bulibasha - commands his folks to get money by begging in other countries or by trading with gold, girls, horses, drugs, stolen car's and so on. They have excellent musicians and craftsman. Serious concerns are because of marriages with very young girls and because of making children to beg from silly tourists. The future depends - in my humble opinion - on breaking the feudalistic power of clan leaders and on getting out of the nomadic orientation. They have to see themselves as a settled down and valuable part of European society. They have to stop looking on other groups as a source of income, but have to make their income through serious business.	Old	Over 65s	1/268	0.373

There isn't a race called caucasian. Caucasian is the people who lived around caucasian mountain and spread throughout most of Europe. There are only 3 primary races namely Dravidians, Mongolians and Africans. Most of the Australian, New Zealand, Papua New Guinea, Timor South Indian aboriginals are Dravidians. The Chinese, Japanese, American aboriginals are Mongolians. Obviously the Africans are Africans. Every other race group we created are either evolved/merged from the three mentioned races above. The white people of Europe didn't want to accept this basic truth and created all kinds of other races to meddle and mingle their identity. White Europeans are basically a group of melanin deprived Dravidians (anglo Indians). Its' akin to a decease called albinism. It's been know for a long time, almost over 100 years. When a skeleton was discovered in Britain in 1903 the scientist were taken aback with bewilderment and didn't know what to make of that discovery. It took almost 115 years before they released the result calling original human of Britain, the cheddar man . It turned out he was dark skinned and dark haired person. The founder of the caucasians. Firstfv Lastfg You have to understand Europeans are brought up on hate. A European parent may not teach their kids how to cook but they will teach them why they should hate other people. And their education system tells them not to trust anyone even their parents. A Saudi colleague's kids were told at a UK school that they should not trust anyone and if their parents hit them they should tell it at school. And due to all this, the end result is that the European kids start hating their parents as soon as they develop understanding of their own. At 18 they leave their parents and the parents sadly die alone in old homes like discarded commodity due to Parkinson or Alzheimer's disease. You do not have to go too far back in the European history to realise what their hate is capable of, just 73 years. 1945 when Germans and their Hungarian, Romanian, Bulgarian allies did to Jews, Romas in Europe. British and their allies did to Bengalis in India and Blacks in America and Africa. Sadly now they feel they are the victims of time.	Old	Over 65s	1/189	0.529

That's the gypsy parents that the balkans encourage for you. Politicians give them welfare, even if they are perfectly able to work and ignore the amount of abuse and exploitation they subject their kids to and in return, they vote for them. They are kinda like typical, syrian refugees, who get away with domestic abuse and other crimes because, just like balkan politicians, western politicians don't want the best for these people. This narrator is so full of shite he squeaks when he walks. I met far too many gypsies from every part of the EU. This jive turkey completely forgets how many millions are found in just the EU alone. They have their own separate clan identity, yet intermarry with each other. World's best known Gypsy is Elvis who is a blend of Sinti-kalabash. Yep there is irish traveller gypsy blended in as well, thru Vernon's side. In sweden which made a huge mistake of allowing balkan gypsies from commie yugoslavia, albania, kosovo and their well organized crime gangs. Literally overnight there was a reign of terror caused by these criminals. Sweden was so stupid they did not make each family go thru the same rigorous visa process they make every other nationality do. They also made that colossal mistake with the arabs and moo-slimes they now regret to come in. Gypsies refuse to assimilate, moo-slimes refuse to assimilate, they prefer to play the victim gimme-grant role. I still don't understand why all of these trash elements are not sent back to the deepest parts of africa, and they can make the same trek their distant ancestors did to leave africa. Sorry to say but 10.000 Finnish Romani here in Finland is the most criminal ethnic group still after some 300 years since they came. Almost none of them work and yet most men drive with expensive cars! But now they are filling the prisons because 2018 electronic surveillance makes their culture of stealing so much more difficult. Young Romani men are to be seen much less than say 10 years ago. They are now facing their biggest challenges yet. They should educate themselves but the problem is that the words work and studying is like an insult which they often react to by spitting after saying those words. Women are no better off, they are also filling prisons because they try to do frauds with little success, resulting in jail for them as well. How on earth can they start to assimilate into our western culture is the big question, they all speak Finnish like us but the similarities ends there I'm afraid.	Ethnic	Ethnicity	1/163	0.613

In America we are called Gypsies (some find this racist, but others have taken the word back). We prefer Romani or Roma. We are treated like normal people and have normal jobs. Most of the time in America, no one knows we're Romani. I am an Emergency Medical Technician, just obtained my bachelor's degree in nursing, and will be starting my new career as an Emergency Room nurse in less than two months, continuing in the service of others in their worst moments. I am active in community service, educated, play violin, and still hold pride in my people. It is a shame to see such remarks from the people of Europe. My only complaint about Gypsies is that you are way too stingy with your women (who are way too beautiful). I have Gypsy friends who are open to discuss anything except my dating any of their family (I was not Rummi - that was the way they said it). I respect it now because that is now they keep the community and culture, but in my case it was love unrequited. This can be fixed however. Other than that, people are people. Kale rash can fix anything, some Sinti still play jazz, some are addicted to video games, while others are teachers, doctors, lawyers, judges, and cops. They have been around the US since before it was the US. Don't see King Of The Gypsies, that is trash, loosely based on one clan Tene Bimbo, and those guys give a bad name to everybody else. Kushti is now a British English word (we stole it from Hindi, I believe), You have to understand that the apparent intolerance for Romani in this very thread is not intolerance of your race. You yourself are settled and living a productive and honest life. I don't have an issue with you being settled or otherwise, but the fact you are living by contributing to your community is key. The issue most of us have with Roma, throughout the Ameri-European eighth of the globe, stems from the dirt-poor travelling ones who for whatever reason can't seem to make an honest living and go around leeching from every community and committing an inordinate amount of petty crime. There are so many of these bad apples and the numbers show it clearly. There are travellers in the UK who are not of Roma descent, who live a similar lifestyle, commit a similar disproportion of petty theft/scam crimes and are the bane of many communities when they show up and rob the villages blind. They are hated upon for the exact same reasons, and have traditionally been called gypsies as well, despite not being Roma. A rich father of a friend of mine once had 'gypsies' move into a field next to his factory. He installed some fresh-water taps on the side of his building, for them to use as they pleased. They stole the tap and plumbing. Thank you for posting, I find the history very interesting.	Race	Ethnicity	1/245	0.408

Antonia No 1 Yes most of the world is ignorant to the fact that Gypsies were enslaved beside African American slaves romany words can be still heard amongst Creole language to this day! Many people around the world only hear of African Americans as slaves never recognise or consider Gypsies as slaves , similarly as moore Gypsies went to the gas chambers during the holocaust in Europe per capita, but the world only recognise the Jews ! (Miro Devla opre Roma) Gypsies were enslaved in many parts of the world , the Americas, Romania which is not too be confused with the name Roma, (some Gypsies were enslaved in Romania for around 500 years , whilst just trying to transverse the country) then just when America the rest of the so called civilised world were abolishing Slavery, around the 1770's Britain needed to populate the Colonies of Australia so created a new terminology of indentured servants sent convicted Romany to the Colonies for 7 years of servitude for such miniscule crimes as stealing a piece of bread , with little to no hope of ever returning to Britain they were forced to assimilate as they were deprived of contact lifestyle of their own people, however many went on to become very prominent citizens of the new colony of Australia becoming wealthy land owners ,graziers producing sheep wool the first beer maker was James Squire (God bless him its a dry country!) his nephew became leading politician in early government! However several waves of free settlers soon came to Australia many of whom were Romany particularly during the gold rush , (we all know Romanys love gold) then after the war in the 1970's we got more , now have a strong population of mixed Romany from many parts	African	Black	1/385	0.26

They talked business or whatever, and after that the Romanian official was taken to a place where he saw a Gypsy beggar. The Germans told him that he is a Romanian Gypsy beggar and asked him to do something with him because it is not okay to beg on streets. Then the Romanian official asked the Gypsy beggar in Romanian, what is his name, what is he doing there, how did he arrived there etc., only to find out that that Gypsy beggar was from Serbia, he didn't speak Romanian language, but he was claiming that he is Romanian! Another fact: Serbian Gypsies came to Romanian border with Serbia and asked political system, claiming that in Serbia they are persecuted! I am a food supplements manufacturer. Few years ago I employed a gypsy young man freshly arrived from Romania. After one week he got his pay, and since that day I did not seen him again. We soon found that he stole tools and products. Since this enriching experience, I decided to avoid to hire gypsies in my company. Their bad reputation is not unmotivated nevertheless, I believe that there must be also good hearts among them. But better avoid them as much as possible. Also, I find Roma or Romani very confusing - they are not Romans, nor ethnic Romanians, as is so well explained in the here presented document. Gypsies, Cigani or Tsigani are much more appropriate, for avoiding confusions. If they consider this as insulting, then we should consider a name related to their ethnic place of origins, in the Indian sub-continent!	Ethnic	Ethnicity	1/145	0.69

I have asked the pre-eminent dna researcher, Brian Sykes, who has created the current dna classifications when he published his 34 daughter of Eve, after his initial discoveries in his 7 daughters of eve. I asked Sykes to isolate my dna screen for redhaired hebrew semitic, which so far he told me he isolated patriarchal levite/cohanim. I followed this up with amarker for gypsy, other than the generic South Asian, simp,y 'cuz, gypsies have interbred with every population on the planet. The definitely most famous gypsy/jew is Elvis. he bragged about his mom's dual ethnic heritage of sinti gypsy and being jewish. On many you tube videos discussing dna results, the South Asian has most folks who take a dna test puzzled. Are they hindi Indians? are they gypsies. Tell tale markers revolve around how many other east european or balkans countries are listed in the dna results. I have been excoriated, called a troll simply for bringing up this conundrum, whereby dna firms refuse to give a clear breakdown and simply use broad based geographical areas which are totally useless as well as completely misleading. What do you base the statement - I paraphrase: Romanian and gypsies are very similar ? This statement ruins an interesting video and makes me doubt these 'revelations'. You made a video about the origin of Romanians - a mixture of Romans and Dacians in the current territory of Romania, and you also admit in this video that the gypsies came from South Asia. How is this 'very similar'? From an anthropological point of view, Romanians and gypsies are very different. One are Caucasian, the other clearly from the Indian subcontinent. In Romania, we romanians, sometimes to scare /persuade our little children to do things we say: If you don't finish your food I'll give you to gypsies or If you don't behave yourself I'll call the gypsies to come and take you away , etc. Basically the gypsies (tigani in romanian language)/romani/roma/whatever... are our version of the boogie man . Since EU let them to call themselves romani/roma creating confusion not only with romanians but also with romans/Rome, personally, I have no problem with my country name to be changed back to its ancient name of Dacia and to call ourselves dacians, just to avoid this very annoying confusion. Its very intersting to note that these gypsies have originated from india. As an indian i can notice such strong connections these ancient people have with their roots. The clothings facial features n dances reflect their indian origin. poverty n lack creates an environment for theft n dishonesty. If they could be provided with jobs food housing n education im sure they would be cultured n live well as any mainstream society. Dude, we tried to integrate them, give them houses, really tried to do what we could... But they simply refuse them all in favor of their lifestyle... I mostly hear them say things similar to a colective mindset. For example if you beat one gypsy, then his whole family up to the 3rd or 4th grade cousins would come back to you and go as far as kill you. This.... It is somehow pretty neat, they're really united, but only among their clan... They have more clans, and in some cases they would clash and fight eachother with the purpose to kill. They really have no regard to human life outside their own clan... You stay to think what really drives them to do such things... Again, we tried integration, didn't work... They simply refuse the modern society as if it would be nuclear poison...	Gypsy	Roma	1/145	0.69

Lots of people suddenly have found a huge opportunity to come and malign over here pouring there hatred regarding the gypsy community and are continuously saying they are Indians. Not saying that they did not immigrated or only a fraction of their DNA is or can be that,much more mixed up with many other. They are not Indians,period and full stop. We have many gypsy races in different regions of India and many of them are talented musicians and dancers and in fact, Rajasthani kalbelia dancers are world renowned and so are the folk singers. So keep your fucking racism against Indians somewhere else because this has nothing to do with our subcontinent now and these people are not part of it. Also big mouthed criticism Is very easy but what has any government of any country has given to them like education or opportunities to flourish and do on? The kind of racism I am seeing on the threads are make by it clear what kind of people and which countries are they coming from. If you don't include them then they will also not like to include themselves to your society,it is as simple as that and you didn't do that from the very beginning and they were left behind in progressions of the rest of the world and that is not entirely their fault. I can go on and on,but for those who are racist fuckers with your tiny square boxed tunnel vision shaped mentality,white or otherwise,I do not see the need as they will try to bring down any race which will be based on color and creed. Don't worry my friend. Most Italians can easily tell the difference between ethnic Romanians and Roma, we are well aware of that. Anyway the problem there is not bloodline but behaviour. People don't like those gypsies that actually live the gypsy way , not because of their ethnicity.	Ethnicity	Ethnicity	1/47	2.128
I think that the Rom designation (Rom - Romani) is less to do with Latin Rumania and more to do with linguistic ties to Rajastan. Rom is a phoneme with many significant meanings to ancient and modern South Asians, especially of the Sanskrit - Prakrit - modern language stock. I say this as a descendant of ethnic Romanians (Bucharest). As to the plight of the Roma and their neighbors, it is important to remember that we all need to get along.	Ethnic	Ethnicity	1/81	1.235

As someone living in a neighborhood where the ethnic majorities are black followed by Gypsies I find them not to be a problem as long as you don't act scared, just act like you would with anyone else and everything will be fine. Although once a group of them tried to sell me hash and proceeded to try to steal the hash I had on me once I told them I had it (that was really dumb I know) in the end everything was fine, nothing was taken from me I just had to talk myself out of the situation. They even gave me my lighter back after just asking for it (they asked for the lighter to start the conversation). In some sources about religion there might be a monotheistic mountain-god or similar. Punjab/Rajasthan seems to be the area they inhabited. The exodus correlates with the Islamic conquest of Northern India. They might have been of a very low caste or high caste. Or rather a high caste that somehow was outside of that system. The mountain-god and the high-caste-theory together with a culture where you are on the move could suggest a mountain-herding group of people. The reason why they/we were called gypsies is because of Egypt but not because of actual Egypt but because of from my tongue little Egypt which was basically western Greece. It was a rich place at the time (Byzantine Empire... coughs) There are stories of a people living on an island there. Swedish Travelers came to Stockholm in Sweden 1512 (Before Gustav Adolfus). Claiming to be a duke with company from Egypt . They were in Denmark by 1410. Early Swedish Travelers and later immigration of the so called gypsies in the 1800:s have very different cultures. As to phenotype. Well. I'm blue-eyed. Really white. Very dark blonde to brown hair. Some cousins have dark skin. The Roma peoples have been very poorly treated in Sweden. My grandmother (born before 1900) had some child taken away from her when they tried to force them to be Swedish . As they did with the Sami people. They force-sterilized them. (threatened the children if they did not comply). The big problem was that travelers or Romani were not allowed to settle down. There were laws prohibiting it. Until very late. My father (born -33) wouldn't approve of me outing myself as a Romani descendant. The stigma it has is really bad. Despite him also	Nobody	Youngsters	1/450	0.222

Alright, so I had at least 4 encounters with gypsies that I can remember now: 1. In Serbia, where I was travelling with my mother, they surrounded our car at a gas station and started shacking it, because we refused to give them money. We had to pretend that we are about to drive over them, so they would run away. 2. In Lithuania, my homeland, we had a gypsy guy in my school. He stole everyone's things, even ,y best friend's jacket (he was later seen in it). He went to jail at the age of 16 for 6 years (probably for a murder), and is dead now himself (killed by his ex friend). 3. In Russia, when I was 7 years old. My mother, I, and my uncle, we were in a train and gypsies surrounded my mother and started 'foretelling'. While one of them stole my mum's purse. Fortunately, my uncle saw it and kicked the shit out of them and returned the purse back. 4. In Jordan, local gypsy girl asked me for money and I refused to give any. She started hissing somethig and pinched me in my arm. As you can see, they really deserve to be hated.	Old	Over 65s	1/204	0.49

It shocks me that they have been in Europe for 1000 years or whatever and they still can't emulate European life. They were brought in Europe as slaves, they were treated like livestock, after they were freed, they were marginalized. When Communism came to Eastern Europe, they were forced to work, but they didn't have any education, so they worked the lowest jobs. Some managed to get an education and became productive members of society, but most lived in poverty. Then Communism fell and many of them fled to Western Europe, saying they are persecuted and they got asylum. There their talents came in handy. Robbery, prostitution, human trafficking has led to many Gypsies making fortunes. They have built palaces in Eastern Europe, they control the police and the politicians. The majority of the Gypsies still live in poverty, even if the state has Affirmative Action policies for them in place, they still don't want to go to school and get normal jobs. The politicians are happy with the status quo, because the Gypsies all vote for the Socialists - the former Communists, and that's a good chunk of the votes, because they all go and vote. Their reputation is deserved, even if some of them are nice people. They are quite an interesting society, having their own laws, their own local leaders, judges, kings. I have a few Gypsy friends, grew up with them in our village, but since they were the only Gypsy family, they assimilated within the local culture. One of the girls has a Ph.D and works in a German University, the other is an engineer in Holland. The boys are now in the UK, they say they are from India :)	Gypsy	Roma	1/265	0.377

Friendly Fetus, true story! I wish all the westerners would know the truth about Gypsies. They say they're discriminated in Romania and they're poor but they bring the money to Romania and they build some huge ugly mansions and buy expensive cars. It's not politically correct to say, but few people in Europe have positive stories to say about their encounters with Gypsies. I've been witness to quite a few unfortunate incidents. But the funniest had to be when I saw a group of Portuguese Gypsies start a fight with Bulgarian Gypsies because the Bulgarians had moved in and started taking their jobs, which was pan-handling at a certain Lisbon intersection. And the most racist thing I ever heard in Europe was in the back of a crowded bus, filled with all kinds of races including Gypsies, and the Gypsies were loudly talking shit about the blacks, the Chinese, the Indians and the whites. They simply didn't care. And no one said a bloody thing back to them. All that being said...here's hoping that Portugal's most famous Cigano, Ricardo Quaresma, goes to Russia and brings back that ugly trophy we call the World Cup. For a Ricardo! Fuck off. It doesn't work. It works to our disadvantage if anything, what a waste of tax money. They take it and sit on their ass, then they steal some more after they spent it on alcohol, drugs etc. instead of trying to forge themselves a better future. Social programs, educational programs, they don't even like to hear about it. Here they don't want to give their kids proper education, because, and I quote: We don't raise your kids like you, romanians. (I am from Romania). Amazing. They culture is literally that. If that doesn't make you subhuman , I don't know what does. It doesn't take a brilliant mind to understand what is for the best. They should be sent to India or get their own country and let themselves be ruled like themselves if they simply refuse others rule. Well, the East-European gypsies are a bit different. Though you want to portray them fancy, loving, travelling, misterious musician nation, the ones that came form Romania are indeed mutch different. They came from Dobrudia, swampy part at the Danube delta that used to work like prison, huge prison for various serious criminals(killers, rapists, kretens,etc.). When Romania got united the simply released all the Gypsies they had who fled across Eurpe and mixed with the non related local gypsies and that is what completely made them so disabled for assimilation. Thanks for this information, Masaman! If only people judged every single individual individually! I'm coaching 12-14 year old kids football/soccer and since about two months ago I have my first 'gypsy' from the nearby children's home practicing with my team. His parents simply abandoned him and his brother, saying they'd meet in a park next week but never showed up again. He only shows up for practice about 1/2 of the time but that seems to be due to him taking his duties (like cleaning his room) at the children's home pretty seriously. He's really is a nice talkative kid (not egoistical at all) and is eager to improve every time he's practicing with us. That's my experience from Germany, cheers!	Old	Over 65s	1/121	0.826

How nice, you've known ONE gypsy, and a child at that, and one that does sport. Live near them for a while, and you'll start to understand. There are some gypsies who flee their own cultural nightmare, but the majority does seclude themselves, they hate the rest of us, and simply refuse to integrate. Unless 90 of gypsy culture simply disappears, and they're left with the aesthetic parts, they simply can't continue to live in our societies without being an eternal source of problems. Child marriage, domestic abuse, not taking their kids to school, all of these are deeply ingrained within the gypsy culture.	Gypsy	Roma	1/104	0.962

Fabian N-E, where are you from ? Social marginalisation ? Come to Romania and see for yourself, there is no social marginalisation. It is true, they were slaves and they were marginalized, but for more than 100 years (300 years in the Western part of the country) they had every chance to change. The Communists gave them jobs, free housings and free education (education is free for Gypsies even today, they have more rights than other citizens) and what did they do ? The French built whole villages for them, and what did they do ? Why are they sending their daughters to prostitute themselves, and chop their boys' hands off, so they can be beggars, when instead they can go to school for free with everything included ? This is a normal Gypsy christening in my town, weddings are much bigger and more luxurious, does this look like extreme poverty and social marginalisation to you ? : https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=0ZAKJJDNAi0	Gypsy	Roma	1/159	0.629

Fabian N-E, I'm Romanian and I have plenty of Gypsy friends, neighbours and even some relatives who integrated perfectly in society and they study and have jobs in Romania and live normal lives. However, there are more kinds of Gypsies and the more conservative ones who can still speak their native language and still live according to their traditions, refuse to integrate and work. The ones who integrated don't wanna be associated with the ones who bring them shame and they tend to consider themselves Romanians rather than Gypsies.	Gypsy	Roma	1/89	1.124

Here in Finland Romani beggars are a new thing, they came in 2007 from Romania because their lives were made so difficult there. We have had our own distinct gypsy group from the Middle ages on who dress in their own way different to the ones who came from Romania and they speak Finnish and their kids go to school etc. But I really feel sorry for the beggars and no one really knows what to do with them. Here it feels shameful because Finland is so progressive and we haven't had begging in decades. Some organizations have given the Romani places to stay with toilets and electricity etc. To me the most important thing would be that the kids would go to school and learn Finnish but also would learn their own culture. Rem Henshaw About the Jewish origin of the Roma Based on historical evidence and the claims of world-famous Finnish and Israeli ethnologists, researchers of Roma identity, such as Mr Ky sti, Mr Roth and Mr Sandor Awraham, I have decided to write this article on the origin of the Roma. The historical part of this article was taken from the History of Ancient Territory of Israel and from a small article by S ndor Awraham Myths, Hypotheses and Facts / This article is also based on the ancient history of the territory of Israel. I considered it important to describe some of this piece of work, as this rare article accurately describes the historical events concerned. Historical outline Historians and ethnologists who claim that Roma come from India are mistaken because they rely only on unilateral knowledge. Their theory is based only on a linguistic point of view, and does not take into account Roma culture as a whole, which is more important for their identity than their acquired language they agree to. If we agree with this theory, we should consider all American blacks as English. This theory is speculative and not correct. / S ndor Awraham / Misinformation about the Indian origin of the Roma largely contributed to the Roma themselves, in order to deny their Jewish origin to invent various false stories about their true origins. But the main guilt in this matter can be attributed to counterfeiters and disinformers of ancient history. There are many Hebrew elements in Romany culture because they come from Israel and not from India and originally are Hebrew Israelites	Indian	Native-American	1/265	0.377

Rem Henshaw Pradesh. Particularly from this area of India, the Romans have learned many foreign words that they use today. The Roma then escaped before the war to Benares, but they were forced to move to the Ranchee area for the reluctant attitude of the local population. India is not the rulers of the Roma but it was only a temporary refuge in the long history of their persecution. They are not in any genetic family with any people living in India, nor did they have any elements from Hinduism. After leaving India, the Roma came to Europe via Iran, Armenia, and the Bosphorus, adding to them both Indian and Iranian nomads. In addition to their language, the only surviving sign is that the Roma also lived in India with several Skit-Sarmatan traditional expressions they appear in their habits. Abu Nasr Al-Utbi's claim to the origin of the Roma from Kaunadz is based only on the unconfirmed fiction of this irresponsible chronicler / author. British colonial police in XIX. century, the Romans invented the nickname gypsies . They also mistakenly called all Indian and Iranian nomads who had nothing in common with the Roma. Later, most of the European research was based on the erroneous assumption that the basis of Roma identity is the nomadic way of life. / S ndor Awraham / Only Roma were not nomads, they were persecuted nations for their Jewish faith! It is a big mistake of ignorance of Israel's ancient history of these researchers. They did not provide any evidence of kinship between Indian peoples and Roma! They only supported a false and misguided theory of the Indo-European origin of the Roma. What evidence can be given to such researchers in this context? Here's the whole story	Common	Working class	1/291	0.344

Rem Henshaw the ancient territory of Israel, which I recommend to study in order to create a clear picture of this part of ancient history. / Author / Based on historical evidence, the results of ethnographic research, genetic comparisons, and the findings of the physical anthropology of the Roma are biased, questionable. The subjects of these research could not in any case be Roma, they could be only Indian, possibly Iranian nomads whom they seemed to consider to be Roma based on the arguments of these people about their Roma origin after their identity was lost. I refer to the Ancient History of Israel. On the contrary, when comparing the genetic maps of the Roma and the Jews, carried out in Finland and Argentina, their relatives' intimacy has been repeatedly confirmed. I categorically refuse the theory of the origin of the Roma from the Indian caste of the Impossible Dr. Tomas Kivisild of Cambridge University on the grounds that I firmly believe that Dr. Kisivild can not distinguish Indian nomads from the Roma. He apparently has no knowledge of the fact that in Europe only Roma constitute 25 of the so-called Gypsies . I can declare responsibly that genetic maps could not have come from the Roma when compared to genetic maps of Indian people from any caste.	Indian	Native-American	1/217	0.461

These Roma, who are darker, are incorrectly convinced that they have nothing to do with the Roma as to their origin and that their origin dates back to the Judea. However, during my multiple personal encounter with them, I have discovered all the characteristics of the Roma identity. / Author / But there are also many Roma families living in Israel who consider themselves to be Roma as well as Jews. The Roma in this state have the status of YEHUDIN, which means they are Jewish citizens of Israel! By the statute Jehudin the legacy of the Jewish origin of the Roma throughout the world has been legalized! Roma have a monotheistic belief. According to this belief, God is attainable. The Hebrew element is also faith in the spiritual world, which consists of pure and polluted spirits. The dead man is polluted as long as his soul is on the way to the spiritual world. Death is the last transition to the spiritual world. At the time of the fast, the whole family is polluted, and all objects related to death are also polluted. At birth, the same rules apply to your Jewish brothers.	Transition	Transexuality	1/194	0.515

Gypsies came in two waves into Europe. The first wave was due to Alexander the Great, who invaded Eastwards into modern day India and brought the people with him. These then settled throughout Central Europe. The ones in the Iberian peninsula came with the Caliphate, who already had gypsies within their ranks. Further waves, due to changes in European landscapes resulted in them moving around the continent however they are not Romanian, nor are they originally from the European continent. Their origins are to be found in the Indian peninsula but today's gypsies are European since they've already settled in the continent.	Indian	Native-American	1/102	0.98

Hallo898 gjjjhjjj gypsy and Roma are two different groups ... Roma are originally from India...two groups might stayed in one place for long time and mingled to each other like it happens normally everywhere and their kids are with fair skin. They mixed completely but some are still with brown skin... I know one of them and he is writing a book about it nowadays. That book will reveal many fake Romas..many conspiracies happened against original Roma.	Gypsy	Roma	1/77	1.299

Hallo898 gjjjhjj- I suggest you google gypsy origins before you continue with your foolish nonsense. Here's a sample: Roma (Gypsies) originated in the Punjab region of northern India as a nomadic people and entered Europe between the eighth and tenth centuries C.E. They were called Gypsies because Europeans mistakenly believed they came from Egypt. This minority is made up of distinct groups called tribes or nations. https://www.usmmm.org/wlc/en/article.php?Mo10005395 https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Romani_people https://www.livescience.com/40652-facts-about-roma-romani-gypsies.html	Gypsy	Roma	1/67	1.493

I would love to know the genetic make up of Roma people to see if they really did come from India. Their origin as Hindu dalits is a fantastic tale created during the 18th and 19th century to denigrate Hindu caste system. However, no one seems to explain how they still remain 'Indian' when they have mixed by culture and marriage with locals. Language is an interesting tracer, but language could easily have filtered through due to waves of islamic invasions across Asia. Refugees and slaves could easily have created a composite language to cope with their new situation. As they moved on, they took the language with them. eg - Urdu is a composite language developed by the camp followers of the Mughal army. If helped them cope with a platheora of languages spoken by various ethnic groups that made up Mughal army. Yet, we can't say all those who speak Urdu are genetically made up of all those nations. Or, lets take English - just because people speak English, we can't say they have Briitish blood or that their ancestors originated in UK!	Ethnic	Ethnicity	1/185	0.541

Antonia No l You're Gypsy by blood but not culture. In fact, there is no real gypsy culture in America. By and large, that ethnicity and lifestyle does not exist here. Any Gypsy blood in America is extremely rare, and you are not in any way a representation of gypsies. You're just an extremely typical westerner, who profited from Western culture, and who happens to have Gypsy blood. Almost certainly highly mixed blood, I would add. After all, your IQ isn't around room temperature. Now, if the gypsies had just settled down and assimilated, the way many governments have tried to get them to do, they be doing just fine, and nobody would despise them. Scams and thievery and animalistic behavior is their choice.	Ethnicity	Ethnicity	1/123	0.813

Antonia No I Not here in America you weren't. We don't tolerate that kind of shit here. Your upbringing is probably the Gypsy version of what Irish Americans call being a St. Paddy's Day Irishman. You got some blood and some traditions, but that's about it. And by the way, literally everything I said in my first comment is true, down to by and large Romani culture doesn't exist in America - that phrase actually means practically non-existent. All of what I said is based on actual research I did years ago. I told you the truth because you didn't have the decency to be ashamed of coming from a race of criminals and tried to present yourself as representing them, when you don't. Better said would have been that you know that they're a blight upon every country they're in, but you are an example of how, when a family leaves that life and settles down, over time they can assimilate, change, and function within their new adopted society, like everybody else. You're an example of how they can succeed, but you're definitely not an example of why any country should tolerate their traditional lifestyle in Europe, because you're not living it. LOL, it reminds me of what happened at my work place: after the (Romanian) right hand of our professor became more influential, our group hired 7 Romanians, 7 Polish and 5 other Slavic scientists, making the natives a minority. I (Austrian) became soon friends with two of the Romanian workers and noticed that one of them was very careless with her valuables. For instance she put her wallet on the lunch tray and never looked at it. Thus I made it disappear and asked her, if she forgot something, to which she replied with no. I then waved her purse around and said to her that I expected someone from Romania to be a bit more careful... to which she glanced at me angrily and told me that it only happened once to her that someone stole from her and that this was on a train-ride through Austria! On a more serious note, most of these East-Europeans were somewhat hostile towards gypsies and one Romanian got pissed when I assumed that she was Armenian or something similar. I was later told that she was ashamed of her Gypsy heritage. Lastly, no Romanian would call gypsies ever romani, for obvious reasons...	Gypsy	Roma	1/200	0.5

First off, I am DEFENDING gypsies. Read all my comments up here on this thread! But mainly, what I originally meant was in response to another person's comment. I meant that it is guaranteed that at least ONE Romani man, woman, or child has set foot on Irish soil in the history of Ireland! And that OF that man, woman, or child, at least ONE of them had children there! You do not need to educate me on gypsy people, not only because I've been studying the romani for years, but because I already KNEW literally everything you have said here! All the same, I am glad that you said it, because there are many people who did not know any of it. Learn who is your friend and who is your enemy! By the way, I'm not sure that never paying taxes belongs in your good gypsy category or your bad gypsy category. I look at it differently. Yes the land the original people that once occupied the region from Afghanistan to present India was greatly reduced through invasions and religious persecution. But the most fascinating thing to me is that despite numerous attempts to invade and colonize and pillage India. It has still retained its identity. The ancient Egyptian civilizations have been wiped out and replaced as well as Mesopotamia, the ancient Persians n Zoroastrians as well. Same thing happened with the indigenous people in Africa. Colonizers and invaders almost completely wiped out their ancient practices and ways of life and thinking. Now its western values and ideologies mixed in with the old traditional beliefs...Yes India may have issues in terms of pollution, overpopulation, and bad seeds but the US (which I was born and brought up in) has 1/3 of its population on anti depressants and anti anxiety medication. ExT Jora Some stupid indians still abuse Britain and in a very exaggerated way. And I understand you were unnecessary provoked. British rule has had positives and negative impact on India. Now, how come few thousand British could win India!! For that you have to go back 1 thousand years. Mad men from West of India kept attacking. In early centuries of it, indians must have made error of judgement that these are just another invaders who will assimilate with society like Huns and many central asians but these were religious fanatics. Iran fell to Arabs in just 20 years after Arabs attacking Iranian and Byzantine lands alike, but after that Hindus of Afghanistan (Zabulistan) fought and holded back Arabs for more than 200 years. It was only when Turks converted to Islam and started pouring in to Afghanistan that Hindus lost Afghanistan. Kabul was gone from Hindu rule just before 1000 AD and ever since Indians were in constant fight and struggle with invading Turks and later Afghans and Mughals, some times surviving by fighting back, sometimes by submission. By the time British came whole indian subcontinent was in utter chaos, though Hindus were resurgent. Hindus were set to win all of India again if British wouldn't have arrived. British won most of the India from Hindus/Sikhs and not Muslims. Society had lost the unity and pride, that's why British could win India with only tens of thousands British soldiers so far from their own country.	Indian	Native-American	1/247	0.405

Sorry, Aris, but I like most Romani people that I know. There's good and bad in every ethnic group. I've met Roma in Macedonia, England and the US, from various different groups, different countries, have had flatmates who were Romani. Most european countries have had laws banning roma/cal people from owning land or limiting where they could buy land to very specific areas. Even worse, where they could buy land, laws could change at any time evicting and disposessing them. Add a history of forced labor, child seizure for forced adoption (in some cases mixed with more forced labor) and forced sterilization and you can very much understand why roma people might be ware of integrating . When the worse in european societies rise to power, the integrated roma are the first to suffer because no matter how integrated they are, mob mentality allways prey on those perceived different. Read about the Gran Redada. Half my mother's family is calo, all integrated for generations. Her grandfather was a tailor and in her family there are lawyers, doctors and bussines owners. And no matter how well integrated they were, whenever someone had a dispute with them, the fact they are cal would arise and be used against them.	doctors	Nationality	1/166	0.602

Why all this yammering, let's make it simples. Any human being of pale skin origin with dark hair and brown to dark eyes have an African origin. The commentator did say that the Romani people's origins started out of Egypt hence the name (Gypsy) and made their way into southern India during which there were a lot of interbreathing. Case closed.	Gypsy	Roma	1/61	1.639

You do know that people can look Irish but not genetically be entirely that? In fact...even the Irish are not fully Irish. Or Irish at all. Ireland was not originally inhabited until humans came there from the mainland. So virtually all Irish and English are descended from ancient people who came there from somewhere else. Actually, Northern Irish and Scottish people have some pretty surprising genetics in some pockets of the population - some have genetic influence from Africa and Spain or as far away as Finland or even into north Asia. That is because Ireland and the UK are basically the last point of land for a long way, with nothing but ocean to the west of them, and so they became natural collecting places for people migrating from all areas over thousands of years. People on the fringes of the landmass always tend to be the ones where you find more interesting genetic signatures because it is where migrating people went who could go no further due to the water or due to cultural / societal barriers. That's the same reason why you find a lot of people in northeastern Europe who have some east-asian genetic heritage - including my Estonian family - even if they look fully European: northeastern Europe was the last bastion for paganism in Europe, it was more removed from the rest of Europe for a longer period of time, and it was close enough to Asia that people could migrate there over time without having to deal too heavily with the Christians in central and western Europe or the Muslim invasions in the South. Today, Finns, Estonians, Latvians, and Lithuanians, genetically, on average belong to Y-dna haplogroup N, which is an east-asian haplogroup shared with Mongolians, Chinese, etc, while almost ALL of the rest of Europe	Ethnicity	Ethnicity	1/723	0.138

Look at most gypsies and u should be able to tell that most of them are mix with east indians and a certain group of Europeans which ultimately created there looks. I believe when the Europeans started moving south they came across these indians that wore alot of jewelry in the Rajasthan area so they gave them the nick name the jews which represent the people of jewelry. These same people were given another nick name called gypsies because the coloured gemstone they wore in their jewelry. The real Jews are the east indians. Azminek That doesn't justify racist attitudes towards their people. Every country has their welfare moochers and scammers. Just look at what a shithole Europe was in the 19th century and what every nation except for the EU and North America still is today. What these people lack is education and a normal development that most modern European states went through in the 19th and 20th century. You could also argue that this missing development is the fault of the higher developed cultures, especially the enslavement and genocide of Romani people throughout the second millenium. And the best way to help these people get out of this curculum of crime is to simply integrate them into society. These people aren't naturally dumb. FACTS: GYPSIES (ROMA) are from PUNJAB - Northern INDIA. They were a miitary people from the LOHAR (metal making caste). They practiced the HINDU religion and worshipped the Hindu Goddess Khali. Their language is a mix of Punjabi, Hindi, sanskrit anD Bengali. They were wrongly called Gypsies by europeans when they thought they came from Egypt. The correct word to describe Roma / Gypsy is 'Bhanjara' They were forced to leave their motherland INDIA, during the ISLAMIC invasions, making theii way through central asia to Europe. However they have retained many of their PUNJABI features. As PUNJAB is in Northern India live in a cooler climate and the land is more fertile, hence they are taller , fairer and more strongly built than south Indians. PUNJABI Indians were the defenders of INDIANS and are the ONLY people in HISTORY to defeat the Afghans in a war! If you look at PUNJABIS today they are still taller, fairer and better built than other Indians including Roma, who have lost some of their Punjabi heritage, due to mixing with other racial groups. However recent DNA testing shows that they still retain majority PUNJABI INDIAN DNA.	Gypsy	Roma	1/195	0.513

Devawrat Vidhate We tried doing that in Romania. We gave them free education (literally free, since their families don't pay taxes) and they stole school property and never showed up again. One county gave them free meal tickets they sold them and complained to get more. We told police to leave them alone, crime rates went up and they started gang wars. We even have gypsy quotas in almost every university (which gives them discounts and state welfare) same with highschools and guess what no one shows up. Year after year they just rip off of what the tax payers are working for. And all that is without mentioning the theft, crime and destruction of public property they do routinely. Devawrat Vidhate tl dr: As far as gypsies are concerned, it's not the politician's fault for the state that they are in. They simply do not want to adapt because the state already gives them so much. Those are measures implemented by politicians, even against the will of the people. There are almost no gypsy politicians in our country. As far as I am aware, there's 3 seats in the parliament for the gypsy party and the party itself only has like 4 members. As an apropos, the party was made by the self-proclaimed king of the gypsies , whom, of course, lives in a palace full with legitimate gold and luxuries that he bought with his money . The gypsies in our country usually don't register as citizens, which is why we can barely even estimate their numbers. Rest assured though, they live pretty decent lives for non-citizens. While they aren't citizens, their children are registered, only so that their parents can collect welfare money. I've only seen a census of people on welfare from 2010, but it did say that of the people registering for welfare, 40 of them were ethnic gypsies. I can kinda attest to that since both gypsy villages that I've visited usually only have a grocery store and a bar (which of course is usually full).	Ethnic	Ethnicity	1/219	0.457
---	--------	-----------	-------	-------

God Particle They have the option to register as citizens whenever they want. There are quite a few that do, in fact. I had several (as they are often referred to as) washed gypsies (meaning gypsies that come from self-emancipated families) and they are just like any other citizen. As far as I know, it was never prohibited for gypsies to form a political party and obtain representation . In fact, there are probably hundreds of gypsy politicians in parties that are not self-proclaimed gypsy parties , such as the Social-Democrats or the National-Liberals. Even in The New Right and the Save The Family Union I've seen a few gypsies. As far as opportunities go, the only obstacle they face is their bad reputation, which they make a very good job of reinforcing, not only here, but abroad as well. Even the government stepped in (as I've mentioned in the first post) to help them by giving away free education and free learning materials (such as books, notebooks, backpacks, money, etc.) and they abused the system so much that it became a national joke for about a year (about how they stole school supplies, collected the money and never returned while there are kids in rural areas who have to walk kilometers to schools each day and sit in freezing classrooms). There was also a campaign to give jobs to gypsies, which was abused a lot in the beginning, but now some of them have started showing up to work. Unfortunately, the ones that do want to work mostly qualify as street cleaners. The situation is very complicated, but it's something that they bring upon themselves and they certainly had and still have a lot of options to get out of.	Gypsy	Roma	1/289	0.346

The Crimson Fucker. You think gypsies are bad but I personally am more conserned about people like you who openly advocate for violence against other people, than I am of any gypsy I, or people I know, have ever met. Just imagine how it will affect a young gypsy reading and hearing how so many people are calling them scumbags and hoping for them to be killed. The Crimson Fucker. I am not saying that all of the gypsy problems are the fault of the other ethnicities surrounding them. I just said that the haters are a PART of the problem. The hating goes of course both ways. No doubt that a lot of gypsy parents teach their kids that other different looking people treat them badly and imply that it is rightful for them to steal from them. Just like some parents from other ethnicities tell their kids how gypsies are thieves, lazy and not to be trusted. I know my parents said that to me a couple times when I was a kid. So I grew to be a bit weary of them. Then I realized that all gypsies aren't like that and I shouldn't prejudicate all of them just because what their culture's reputation is. Kids are what their family teach them to be but the society around them also has an effect. I am not denying the negative effects the gypsy kids get from their parents. I am just telling that openly hating gypsies makes things worse. Because if you grew up in a society where you and your family are hated and prejudicated all the time just because what you look, would you feel like assimilating into that hating culture, going to a school and get a good job with those people if a lot of them where a lot of people were openly hating you for just because what kind of culture you come from. Gypsies are people too. There too are a lot of them who make prejudifications of other cultures just because of some people in those cultures. They most likely see the surrounding people groups as unreasonable haters the same way the other people groups see them as criminals.	Gypsy	Roma	1/301	0.332

No doubt that a lot of gypsy parents teach their kids that other different looking people treat them badly and imply that it is rightful for them to steal from them. Let me correct you, a lot of gypsy parents teach their kids that other, different looking people aren't gypsies and therefor it is rightful to steal from them. They don't imply it, they outright instruct their children to steal. Gypsy children who try to walk the path of decent citizens get criticized, ostracized, bullied and abused by their families first and then also their entire community. The only gypsies that get a grip on their lives are the ones that purposefully and willingly chose to remove themselves from gypsy culture and society. Just like some parents from other ethnicities tell their kids how gypsies are thieves, lazy and not to be trusted. That's called great advice . Like teaching your daughter not to go down dark alleyways at night or your son not to marry for looks because he'll get burned by a gold digger. Then I realized that all gypsies aren't like that and I shouldn't prejudicate all of them And what exactly changed your mind? Did it, perhaps, have anything to do with your university education? I am just telling that openly hating gypsies makes things worse. They engender it towards themselves. I am not given to loving criminals. Nobody really hates gypsies for being gypsy, we hate them for their culture. Based on YOUR description of yourself and your family you don't follow their culture which means you're one of us. These people have been in Europe since the Byzantine empire and have been unable to integrate. They're nomadic and thieves, if those words don't describe you, you are only genetically related to them, but culturally you're one of us, study hard and get a good job, perhaps persuade other romanis to leave their lives of theft and settle down and make an honest living like the rest of us. Where i come from they're nothing but a plague. Usless and a blight. Of course not all of them are like that i know a few that are alright. They work hard, try to contribute to the community as much as they can instead of being a dead weight. Some of them really try to blend in and do their best to live honorably but there are so few of them. Most of them however don't. They steal, they don't follow even some of the most basic laws and although it happens rarely some times things escalate and even murders occur. That's like 90 of them and more. If it was up to me id order tests to be done. Blood tests. Anyone who has a a higher percent of Thracian or slavic blood or is just willing to be part of our community id be more then willing to allow them to stay. There are countries like Hungary and Bulgaria with a higher percentage from total population, so I donno why you think they are exclusive to Romania? Gypsy	Roma	1/78	1.282
Okay, let me start off by saying I never thought most of Romania was gypsy, I love your country and always knew it was mostly white. Here's the bad news: I was convinced you were right, so I decided to do a little research, just for my own personal knowledge. I found you were indeed right about the population of gypsies in Romania being in the 1,000,000 category. And I wouldn't doubt that there are more Hungarians there as well, but I didn't look that up. But, it turns out, the percentage of gypsies in Hungary and Bulgaria is 4 to 10 of the population, but for Romania and Macedonia it can be anywhere from 3 to 13 !! I live in the U.S. but I'm with you on the whole keep Europe white thing, but I searched multiple sources and they all say different shit! But quite a few, most in fact, say it's more than 5 . I'm not sure what's correct, but you do have the largest population of gypsies in Europe, which is all I really thought to begin with.	Gypsy	Roma	1/182	0.549

That's surprising. Yes, they are a nomadic culture. I always thought they were kind of cool, but we don't really have to deal with them here. The ones that are here do not act like that, they act like normal people. But I can totally see how that shit would get old real quick! Let me tell you my story about gypsies here in Romania: I was born in an average size town in Romania (Satu Mare), a town with Romanians, Hungarians, very few Germans and some gypsies. I was both fortunate and unfortunate to witness a communist period, a long transition period to democracy and then the still going process of the Romanian society away from communism. My parents are still working although my mother is retired after 40 years of working and my father is also close to retirement age (he works since he was 16, so for 45 years already). The first encounter with gypsies as I remember it was as small child, some gypsies came about once a week or every second week in our neighborhood screaming that they trade new pots for old clothes. This didn't have much effect on me I rather found it a bit strange. Then, as I grew up I started to meet more and more in different occasions. Just around the corner, close to my building, there were some gypsies selling chewing gum from Hungary directly on the street. It was funny for me to see that when a police car came, they pretended they actually are walking in that area. I also had a colleague in school for a year or so. She was put alone in a bench because she had lice. Still, we tried to play along a colleague brought her food every single day so I can't say she was discriminated in any way. As a child, the curiosity makes you think more and more why some people are different and you just ask. I knew that the gypsies are for instance good craftsmen they were good in working with metal. I asked my father why his company is not hiring gypsies and the answer was surprising. They are not reliable. They don't stay in one place to work every day, they don't respect a schedule so they refuse being	Transition	Transexuality	1/1786	0.056

George Against The western media has tainted a lot of people's minds about India by selectively reporting the negatives to create fear mongering and stereotyping of all people of Indian decent. Why is this so I would always ask myself ? India is the only non white nation to stand up to an imperial sovereign nation and fight for their independence, the English crown had no choice but to grant them , through Mahatma Ghandi's civil disobedience/refusal to work until independence was granted , caused the British to rethink their future strategy. Once India could not be exploited enslaved and raped the English would destroy their global reputation by negative publicity . India's independence was a slap in the face of white supremacy . You have to understand the relationship between Freemasonry, white supremacy and the uniting of Europe to get my point.	Indian	Native-American	1/143	0.699

Also might I add, India has a strong cultural foundation, much like China to become a super power. Most western societies at this moment are getting dysfunctional with broken homes, divorces and single parents, with people confused about gender etc etc. So their society is crumbling from within, it is only a metter of time before India and China rise up. So the West especially the English along with the US are waging a propaganda war against India, and China and trying to keep both of the powers apart via divide and conquer. Hopefully These 2 can see thru it, and embrace their traditional eastern connections to co-exist and shape the world next.	Gender	Gender	1/113	0.885

Good observation, i agree the Romanian gypsy culture is very retarded, we lucky they all flew out from romania 15 y ago, but a good part of them mixed in the romanian culture, it happened long before the european exodus, we call them the romanized ... About the race itself is easier for them to mix with north africans and nord americans since the skin color is allmost the same but they have strong genes, the mixing of elements from parents are very insolubil in case of crossmixing race, is hard with the neo-european race for exemple, the weird part is that the indian brown race wich they came from can mix evenly with others resulting an even, and omegene cross from the parents ... A lot of them gipsy have blond hair and strong bleu eyes, remenesance of their migration from the north compared to africans or chinez wich mix evenly from the parents and, after generations is hard to reconize the origine. For exemole: A afro american is normaly 20 european. How many black americans famillies give birth to white blond bleu eyed children ? ... is extremly rare. Where I am from, the current Romani population was the first migrant group to migrate to it. I am from England, and is Romani have been here since the 16th century, which is a century before Jewish people migrated here and 2 and a half centuries before Indian/African/Caribbean groups migrated here. In the UK's history, Romani have been killed, deported and sent abroad as slaves. We British Romanichal identify as Romanichal, and our language is Angloromani. Words like Cushty, Chavvy, Chor, Mush, Dordy, Dinlo, ETC are Anglormani words which are used by non-Romani people in places like Kent, East London, Portsmouth and the Fens, all of which have large Anglormani speaking Romanichal communities. In the Fens, Romani are the largest Minority Group. Romanichal are one of many Itinerant Ethnic Minority Groups in Britain, others include Irish Travellers, Showmab Travellers, Scottish Highland Travellers and Eastern European Roma. It is said in the South Indian History due to a Tsunamis catastrophe thousand of years back that whole kingdoms were evacuated to the north of India. Kings were seen moving with their people to find a other location. Looks like these people who moved still have not found a right place to settle. They took the science of magic when they left us and still use it for their survival. It is a shame that they have become what they are now.	Indian	Native-American	1/83	1.205

I am Slovak and I can talk only 1st hand about Czech and Slovak gypsies. You get 2 kinds of them: a) Somebody of Gypsy descent -visible darker complexion -observing some part of the cultural heritage Completely normal person, works, contributes to society and lives in peace. b) THE Gypsy -loud, obnoxious and irreverent -steals metal objects of any description (copper from buried cables, manhole covers from streets...) to sell them for fast cash or violently attacks in groups vulnerable people like retirees and women for petty cash. -Lives of welfare and theft by having 5 kinds which are malnourished, and visit school only from time to time. Always looking for booze and smokes. -He makes home either in state provided flat which will be ruined beyond recognition after he leaves or lives in illegal village built out of stolen materials (shanty town) I have no problem with group a) and would not call such a person a gypsy, that would be an insult. Group b) should be removed from the country completely, in any way possible.	Gypsy	Roma	1/177	0.565

Your descriptions fit well greek gypsies too, though i would add that they have a lot of interbreeding. They make their 10 children work from age 6,sending them to sell flowers or tissues or whatever to pedestrians. Most of them live isolated in villages or in ghettos in cities where all the big heads of gypsy mafia make money of drugs and the rest of them salvage copper, steal and shoot heroin. Some of these people fortunately escape this way of life and integrate into greek society but most of them dont. Oh and politicians only remember them when its election time of course. I wish in the future for more gypsies to integrate into society, say no to the arranged marriage of their 1st cousin, follow the footsteps of gypsy role models like Eleni Vitali and Vas Vas o Paraskevas	Age	Age	1/141	0.709

REMOVE GYPSY.MP3 No, but seriously, I agree that group b) should have no place... well... anywhere, even in a place of somewhat of a homeland from when they migrated called Romania . Perhaps we could just give them a damn island and create their own ethnostate so they can loot and kill their economy there. I think that would be fair instead of making innocent taxpayers pay for their BS living conditions where they get to live like a hardworking individual with living off of the man, however, they don't work whatsoever, unless thievery is a job. I currently live in America, and I can tell you that it's the same with predominately Mexican immigrants. A lot of them are hard workers and just try to get by like you and I do in Slovenia/America, and then a lot of them are like gypsies, and live off of the man and steal our shit while it's politically incorrect and so evil to say the truth about the turds from one country we get. It's not a generalization or even a dichotomy, it's in fact the truth. In conclusion, I think every nation outside of Europe has their own kind of gypsies, which is complete and total BS. For me - as a German - very interesting hate comments, I have to say... Promoting genocide is never a good thing, I would suggest. There have to be other solutions. That being said When I worked as a bouncer or doorman it was absolutely known who the gypsies were and that they were among the most dangerous people you encounter in nightlife. And they had typical features, I would say. Obviously not really European looking, with greasy hair, often some kind of bling, especially big crucifixes. Mert Schindler hello again my dear. In the middle ages dark skin was frowned upon by most of the populace of europe. It is a known fact, isn't it ? Dark skin was associated to all evils back then, and unfortunately it seems like it didn't change much . The gypsies were mistaken for egyptians whereas they never had anything to do with egypt excepted the fact that some gypsy group would have only crossed egypt to reach europe. And as well their worldview and their language (which is recognized as of North Indian origin) was deemed as the devil's language by the then bigoted zealots , hence women were immediately judged as satanic witches and burnt along with black cats children were marked with an iron in the back so that they would be recognized as gypsies (zingeur) by locals and the Catholic leaders motivated everyone to harm any gypsy they met even with no reason just for being ethnically different (to the extent) using this weird law Anyone who comes across a gypsy is allowed to kill off that satanic being lest he brings you his demons . When a culture or society migrates to another country, they are always considered different, and untrustworthy because the lifestyle and beliefs are different from the status quo. This is what happened to the original travelers, and with the upsurge of Christianity and the claustrophobic ideas of anything that did not follow this after the crusades they created a devil. That devil was the Romas an identity of people you cannot trust, thieves and crooks. Pure an simple racism. It was society that passed this identity of these people for years for centuries, and has ingrained this image in society. It is not that they fought for this to try to dislodge this image, it is that they have accepted this. I feel sorry for them, as they are a society that has been persecuted, demeaned, and frankly not respected. What would anyone become if they were treated like this historically for doing nothing. People need to look at you true history and realise that although your culture and ideas may be different, and religion, which I do not believe in, we are all one, and we will die and live. People who have been persecuted, murdered and uprooted so often that they just can not believe that stability is possible for them. They have been forced to flee so often that the instinct of migration has been imprinted in their DNA. I wonder what kind of holocaust in Asia started the plight of these people. Of course, as they migrate, they take some things with them and leave somethings behind too, so they are stolen from and also steal some. Overall, however, they are true victims and a dying race. My first exposure to Roma society is from a show called Arrange Marriage. Yes, they don't seem to join outsiders or have outsider joint them. Guess from a life of prosecution, one tents to stay a low profile and anyone that would insult or cursed them. So, they do get married young and is an arrange marriage. Wonder, if there are Gypsy that wants to brake traditions and go for higher education than high school. Think this culture is suffering from PTSD. They did say that anyone that broke traditions would be excommunicated by their community. Seems like they are preventing each other from success. Maybe there are Gypsy that are executive, lawyers, and Doctors but they no longer consider themselves Gypsy bc they have been excommunicated. david bryan technically you're correct but there's a social phenomenon called shunning which is what this sounds like. It doesn't seem like the OP is a native English speake and reached for the closest term they were aware of to describe what happens. It's what an ethnic group would do. Jehovah's witnesses have a unique term for it, disfellowshipped . Different cults and cultures, different name, but same result : complete loss of social support network, no more friends, no family, no protection from exploitative strangers, etc. In a culture where the government provides zero safety net and is looked upon as an enemy to be feared and avoided one's friends and family and church parishioners or ethnic fellows are the only bulwark between the individual and the cruel cold wold. Lose them and you lose almost everything that matters in life and that gives you an identity. Hi I am from Slovakia and Gypsies them selves have no idea what they really are. One of the problems is communism that killed their original culture. They used to move all around and then after communist took over Czechoslovakia they could not anymore. They completely lost their identity. For instance when there were Sandokan movies they would name their sons Sandokan, then we got movies about Winnetou so they would name their sons Winnetou and daughters Ribana, some time ago we got popular Turkish soup opera Binbir Gece so we got bunch of little Onurs and Shehrezads running around. Oh and they bang their daughters. Incest is nothing for them. There is one village in Slovakia I can not find a name of it. In 1950 a one Gypsy family moved in. Now there are 1000 of them and they are all related. There was a guy from Canada to do genetic research and he confirmed it.	Nothing	Youngsters	1/158	0.633

wow, i didnt know about that village. still sad gypsies had lost their identity. I think they deserve better. We had treated them like a scum for centuries, so now, lots of them behave like one. They are hostile to their surrounding, beause the surrounding has always been hostile to them. I was so sad, when I first visited Romania and saw gypsies there. They are not like these in Slovakia (I am Slovak too, so I can compare), they have still their traditional clothes, horses and stuff, men wear huts and mustache, they play gypsy music on the streets... You can recognize them immediately. We were in Romania with our dog. So everytime me or my husband went to see some monument, while the other one stayed outside with pet and then we got changed. Once, I was waiting for husband and one gypsy woman came to me and told me I am beautiful. I had that big gypsy fake earrings and boho skirt. It was still summer and hot, so I like this bohemian-hippie style full of colours. I gave her my earrings, because she really loved them and she almost cried that all white people only shoo her. We were talking little bit then about her life. She was speaking romanian and hungarian (and gypsy I presume). She said they had horses too and some family in Slovakia, Poland and Italy. In that moment, my husband was returning from the museum and when he saw me with gypsy, he hurried to me asking if she robbed me. He said I need to check my stuff, if nothing s gone missing. But he was just paranoid. She was very nice woman, was not begging or something, just wanted to make small talk and wished me many children. We were just talking and my husband almost ran towards me horrified like if i was in danger...She didnt understand slovak,	Gypsy	Roma	1/579	0.173

Tam s L szl Veres Right, but think about this: their culture is their reality, you cannot expect from anyone to act different if the only thing that they know is what they learned. For example, in my country, if the government would be more sensible when it comes to this topic, they would be much more better, but the government is made by people, and they don't give a fuck about them, and also they are the one complaining about gypsies. They need education, they need someone or somebody to show them, how can you expect to them to be something else when nobody shows them how to be that something else..?	Nobody	Youngsters	1/111	0.901

Tam s L szl Veres Look at the black people integrated in the western societies. They succeed, they had a rough time. They hurt them alot, we've seen that's not the way. And even jewish people, they are still seen as a threat for many countries, and what for?. We tend not to like different people/cultures, religion, but we've seen that doing bad things just because they are different it's not going to change anything. If we can understand this, only then we can be better, stronger. Being united is what maked our species great.	Black	Black	1/93	1.075
Gypsies in Slovakia have access to free schools and universities, and can all become doctors and lawyers if they like. For whatever cultural reasons, they choose to remain poor Gypsies, living in squalor, accepting free money and housing from the government, multiplying like rabbits, and reducing beautiful villages and towns to piles of garbage. Although they make some nice music, and they are not all bad people, Gypsies drain their host country and are of little benefit. Pray they don't move into your town.	doctors	Nationality	1/84	1.19

What proof do you have that we come from the Khazars? Stop lying about us. Jews, whether Ashkenazi, Sephardi or Mizrachi, have more sociological, archeological and written proof of our history than any race or nation in the world. Conservative Revolutionary Wow, you must be retarded. Here's what it says in Wikipedia's article, with the link you provided, regarding Jewish Ashkenazi genetics Genetic studies on Jews have found no substantive evidence of a Khazar origin among Ashkenazi Jews, as opposed to evidence they have mixed Near Eastern/Mediterranean and Southern European origins. 10 Nowhere in the article is there proof provided that Ashkenazim are descendents from the Khazars. There are no Khazars today compare their genes to, so what are you blabbering about Ashkenazim having the same genes as Khazars... And despite your fairytales and fancy genetic hypothesis that is based on Jew-hatred as opposed to proven facts, there's no proof whatsoever of the Khazar nation converting. There are no archeological proofs nor any other kind of proof of that story. And that's beside the point. As I've mentioned, Jews, including Ashkenazic Jews, have more proof of our history than any other race and nation in the world and even would there be a nation of converts, that has no bearing on Jewish Ashkenazic history. Gypsy state cannot be established on earth, because all nations have already claimed the land they want to live in. Maybe they will establish their state on the moon? XD I mean, unlike the Jews, the Gypsies, don't have their promised land, that used to belong them, that they could come back to. And I am pretty sure that none of them, would choose to live in India, because why would they? They lived in Europe, for a very long time, and India is entirely different culture. Althou, there is ONE place that they could occupy, if the Russians, would be thrown out of there : KALININGRAD/KR LEWIEC/KONIGSBERG. Why? Because it was never Russian, and Russia took it only after World War II. Thus Russia should be thrown out. But it cannot be given back to the Germans, because it would cause Tensions, between Germany and Poland, like it did since the beggining. It could be of course, settled by Lithuanians and Poles, and split between them, but at the same time, this could allow to create a Gypsy state there... Of course, it would require them to want to settle there. And Gypsies, don't realy want to create one nation IMHO. They want to be free people, that can travel. It's true way of life of the Gypsy. This is completely true. In Croatia your basic bigot thinks of everyone with a shade darker skin than a celt, german or slav as a gypsy . Literally everyone, the world is divided into obviously white people , asians , blacks and gypsies . That last group includes everyone from all of South America to non-black africans, the Mediterranean, Middle-East, India, and pretty much anyone in Europe with black hair. The problem is that they're completely unable to tell a properly european looking or a properly integrated Romani person from everyone else, so they only focus on the poor and the delinquents. And since the Roma know what Croats are like, when they have an establishment they do their best to hide the fact that it's run/staffed by gypsies. I've known virulent Roma haters who buy their daily bread and dairy products in a Roma bakery every day, and they had no idea WAS a Roma bakery, because all the counter staff were blond and pale skinned. But if you put Italians on the counter in a bakery, these same folks will think it's a gypsy bakery, just look at them . But every time anyone at all, anywhere on earth, does anything bad, and happens to have even a suntan - look at those gypsies, they're all criminals .	Gypsy	Roma	1/214	0.467

In Croatia everyone with a darker complexion at all is not so much called a gypsy but insulted because they're gypsies . Italians? Gypsies! Serbians! Gypsies! Greeks? Gypsies! Turks? Gypsies! Arabs? Gypsies! Jews? Gypsies! Egyptians? Gypsies! Indians? Gypsies! Your cousin who happens to have black hair? GYPSY! It's also the main explanation for anything anyone on the globe who isn't VERY CLEARLY white does. Someone in South America does something? What do you expect, they're all gypsies. Someone in Serbia does something? What do you expect from gypsies? Someone in India does something? They're gypsies, they don't know any better. There's rather good reason to believe there wasn't that much Nazi'sm around here as much as conviction that anyone who looked even vaguely Mediterranean or Asian was a Gypsy and thus up to no good . It's like, it's not that you like or trust blond people, or think much of them, but you're fairly certain that they're not Gypsies so they MIGHT be ok, and everyone else can't be ok because they're gypsies . It's understandable when someone has actual bad experiences with actual gypsies (of which many are perfectly fine and integrated, but some really do live up to the stereotype), but the true extent of the racism towards gypsies becomes clear when you figure out that anyone at all who isn't very clearly white, and this means mostly very obviously slavic, celtic or germanic, is automatically written off as a gypsy . Btw there are many shops owned and run by gypsies. What they do is that they put blonder, european looking folks on the counters, while they keep folks who look a shade more Mediterranean in the back. I explain to you all who are the gypsies. Two months ago my grandma had her two gypsies breaking into her home. She was sleeping, and the two went directly to her bedside table to look for gold. Of course, coming from a family of poor farmers, she is not a wealthy woman herself, yet she is weak and 95 years old, which makes her a wonderful target for these people. She woke up while they were rummaging through her belongings, so she saw the faces of a man and a woman, seeing clearly who they were. In that moment they took a tissue dipped in some chemical agent, stuffed it onto her mouth and nose and knocked her unconscious. She woke up vomiting, with all the few valuables she had taken. The only gold she had were four medals of my deceased grandfather, one he received for surviving Mauthausen concentration camp, one he received when he was a partisan, and two for helping establishing a bank for poor farmers after the war. They even broke her ring finger, trying to rob her of her wedding ring, which she never took in almost seven decades. This all happened in broad daylight, in the countryside near Venice(IT). Of course two gypsy women came each day for two weeks to park their car near the house before that day, chatting with each other, studying the place. The result is a 95 year old woman in hospital for one month for the injuries, crying every day because she had some of the most touching mementos of the man she loved all her life taken away from her, all just because she is weak and those people can't be bothered to work to make money, everybody calling her racist because she doesn't pledge her everlasting love to them.	Racist	Ethnicity	1/304	0.329

The word Aryan comes from the old Indo-Iranian word Arya. Arya was a word used by Indo-Iranian people as an Ethnic Identification word. Indo-Iranian Arya originated in Persia, and spread out until Kurdistan, Afghanistan, and even parts of Northern India. Groups like the Kurds, Sikhs, Gypsies, Afghans, Persians, ETC are all descended from the Arya race which inhabited modern day Kurdistan, Iran, Afghanistan and Northern India. Listen, I've been squeezing my brain here trying to come up with a good example of a Romanian person who looks like a Romanian...I'll say this, in hopes you know the guy. Sebastian Stan (Winter Soldier/ Bucky) is Romanian. If he looks like a gypsy, then I don't know...clearly it's a lost cause trying to explain to someone the difference if they've already decided on their opinion. My dad also is blond with green eyes, so was my grandpa and they're all Romanians. Or you can be white with brown eyes and hair (like me). That's how all my friends and family look like. A gypsy is dark skinned, black haired in most cases, they have quite obvious Indian features. Most of them you can spot them from a distance. I try to keep an open mind, but really...I think they're a lost cause. We failed to integrate them here, the western/northern countries don't seem to do better either, I honestly don't know what we can do about them. Also, may I add, I've been living in Romania for more than 20 years and I've maybe passed once or twice through a gypsy village.They're not common, yet these pictures are circulating online as if that's how villages in Romania look like. My friend no race is slave in this world. It all depends on how civilized the so called masters are. If they don't understand other cultures they had either destroyed the others or try to make them slaves. Best example is Spanish and Mayan culture. Dear all civilizations are somewhere linked together. One surprising fact is the basic language on which most of the European languages and the carried languages of the Romania is the same or. ,(sanskrit) all the mathematical terms and many words are derived from sanskrit (again having thousands of years of history) llike dvi, tri, chatur panca,seh,septa, asta,navam,dasham, navagati bacomes navigation, triconmiti becomes triconametry. Dev becomes duo, I have also checked and verified the same with my Italian and Spanish friends as well. Refer some old sanskrit books like ' Yantra sarvasvam' on the advanced aircraft (vimanas) technology you will be amazed to see how advanced this mankind was at those golden days. In India you will have many of such old science preserved by generations even after the onslaught by uncivilized berbarians.	Race	Ethnicity	1/177	0.565

I don't think English travellers are from Indian decent, like Romani are. They tend to be impoverished English that started to leave the cities around the time of industrialisation, going from one place to the next to perform certain jobs on the go, as city life was not all that great in those times and many people lost traditional jobs due to industrialisation. In Netherlands there's the same phenomenon called 'woonwagenbewoners'. They also live in different encampments as Romani, but still often live in trailers.	Indian	Native-American	1/85	1.176

Good explanatory video, only a few remarks to add: 1. I don't hate the Gypsies, I hate when the confusion is made between their new name and Romanians, the people of Romania, the country. 2. The term Romani (with the accent on the final i, not as you used it in the video) is newly created. It is the political correct version of traditional names used by the rest of the world and themselves to designate Gypsies, Tzigoyner, Tsiganne, Zingaro or whatever people used to call them throughout Europe. 3. It is the equivalent of African American or Native American introduced only decades ago in public vocabulary and later enforced by censors. Except, in real life, I have never met anyone, except the douche bags working in NGOs or politicians, to actually use this PC term. Not even Gypsies themselves use Romani to refer to themselves when talking to foreigners. 4. It is true, that in their language they do use something that sounds like this. But that is from what I know derived from some Sanskrit word meaning human and us / our nation . The word is something like drom and evolved into rom . 5. The name Romanian (in original, rom n, with the plural rom ni) on the other hand, referring to the inhabitants of Romania (Rom nia) obviously comes from Rome and the ancient Roman Empire. The place was part of that empire and the language of the country is a Latin language, very much related with Italian, Spanish, French and Portuguese. 6. Ethnically, the people of Romania and the Gypsies are also distinct. Romanians are white, European (ranging from a Mediterranean aspect with black hair and darker skin to white skin and blond hair, as numerous populations from Slavs to migratory tribes or settlers from distant parts of the	Racist	Ethnicity	1/645	0.155

DNA argument seems to me too close to racism. Races exist, but it's not all that matters, at least for me, not among the first. Humans are not just breeds of dogs or other animals to be defined in such a simplistic way. Culture is far more important, religion, language, education, personal qualities, upbringing and so on. The problem with the Gypsies is not that they come from outside Europe, is that some of them did not adhere to the European culture and way of life in the last thousand years. If they did, no one would care. Trying to remake the genealogy of a person based on genes is based too much on speculations. They say that going back a millennium would give a person something like 100.000 ancestors. What difference does it make if one of those is Alexander the Great? Though it would be cool to present yourself as his grand-grand....son. Or, let's say they find out a Persian gene in you. It would make a difference if that comes from a king or his slave, but the gene would not show it. Einstein and the woman who was doing his laundry had probably the same marker of origin. It's like with those who pretend to have lived other lives - they are always Cleopatra, Caesar, never some low life in their stories. And what would the European marker indicate? A Bulgarian is not the same as a Portuguese. But many of the peoples of Europe came from Asia. If the Huns came in the 4th century, a Hungarian today would have similar indicators as someone who just moved in the 19th century to UK from Azerbaidjan and mixed with locals. But they are culturally worlds apart. Many people will say, OK, but it's the overall percentage that matters. So, it seems a whole new accent. They may have been sent to Brazil as a Portuguese policy, which may explain why the Portuguese community is small, unlike Spain's. Gypsy accent in Portugal is very close to the southern Portuguese accent, even if there are gypsies communities in the North, their accent is quite distinct from Northern Portuguese, as they retain southern Portuguese features. Gypsies in Portugal often speak Portuguese, some do speak Calo, but very rare, most of those who do come from Spain, and mix Portuguese-Spanish while speaking with us. Their religion is Christian, but not Catholic... some Portuguese gypsies for integration, have done some religious rituals in the streets for Portuguese to see... it is more like an evangelic sect, not Catholic at all. Adrian Stan while growing up I had heard about Europe. How wonderful it is cities like Paris, Rome, Berlin, etc. I have visited almost all major European cities and have seen things similar to what I had seen in India, with same kinds of crimes, beggars and ghettos etc. I am not comparing it with India, but people are more compassionate in India than these cities. I feel the same compassion to the homeless people in Europe as well, I could call them all the bad names that you have used but I will not, because I consider them human before being an Indian or European or any other race. I don't normally comment on YouTube videos, but the lack of humanity is evident in this thread that compelled me to write something. I don't think all Roma are criminals by nature, some of them may be, but Europeans are also making these criminals by indiscriminate hate to Roma and persecuting them for their culture. You called me Hitler but he killed millions of Roma many of the comments agree with him as well so it is obvious who the Nazis are. I don't even know why I am trying to explain this to you, may be because I consider you human before a arrogant racist westener.	Racist	Ethnicity	1/216	0.463

Btw, isn't it a little ironic that Roma usually speak a language of Indo-Aryan origin mixed with the language of whatever country they've ended up in and yet the Nazis who were obsessed with myths about Germanic-Aryan origins of course hated the gypsies /Roma? I guess it's because they thought the Roma were nomadic and migrated to other people's homelands like the Jews and they may have believed the Roma were of Egyptian instead of North Indian/Aryan origin like how people used to believe of the Roma. The Nazis also believed oddly enough that the Native Americans were prime Aryans somehow, and some neo-Nazis and/or Himmler had bizarre mythology about aliens visiting the ancient Aryans and them founding the long lost Atlantis. Some of that bizarre mythology comes from Himmler who tried to find archaeological evidence for his conspiracy theories about Aryan origins and other myths games from post-war Neo-Nazis and the French woman turned Hindu/neo-Nazi Savitri Deva. although they are indeed very similar (Romanians and gypsies). How do you know? Have ever been to Romania? Have you lived there? Do you even know what you're talking about? There are all sorts of gypsies, good and bad. Just as there are many Romanians, good and bad. But one thing is for sure they have absolutely nothing in common. Most Romanians are the direct followers of Dacians mixed with a bit of Slavic tribes later from the 7th century. The Gypsies which you describe have came into Europe somewhere in the 17th century from India (where you described their migration well enough). Two totally different cultures. In conclusion, the only thing that's similar is the shape of your deformed head and that of the hospital floor where your mother accidentally dropped you after your mom (dressed as a gypsy) read your future in my hairy balls with her lips. Thank you for a nice objective overview, though I'm shocked by the amount of hatred in the comments. In Austria we have the Burgenlandroma as a recognized minority. Burgenland is home to a number of minorities including Croatian and Hungarian. In Greece we do not call them Romani or Roma - we call them what they are : Gipsies. This Romani / Roma idiocy was invented by western european leftists to erase the name gipsy supposedly because of its negative connotations as if Gipsies would not litter around their new name. Supposedly it is the name Gipsies use for themselves, yet in reality the name they use is not Roma but Loma. So why didn't they call them Loma? Good old western European racism : they wanted to make the deliberate mix of Romanian people (who have nothing to do with Gipsies) and Gipsies by the confusion of Romanians with Roma since many Gipsies emigrated to western Europe from Romania. I.e. the whole Roma/Romani naming of Gipsies had a very racist motive behind against the Romanian and in general all Eastern European people.	Racist	Ethnicity	1/143	0.699

No, because they live in our society but outside of it, they never integrate, they are like a parasite living forever in your body. Also, in many places they have got a well earned reputation of being thieves, deceiver and other things. In my city for example, lots of them are beggars, every morning at about 7 am, 5 to 6 mothers are driven in brand new 4x4s trucks and left in the main square with lots of childrens(probably not all are theirs) and then they find places to rest and beg for the rest of the day. Their children also go from door to door asking for money and when you give them food instead they just say thanks and then throw it a couple of blocks away(happened to me once, my mom gave the kid a bag of noodles and found the bag opened on the street half a block from home). Also, there are some who lived near my house some 10 blocks away and they got a 2 floor house filled with 0km cars and they even bought a land next to the house to fill it with more cars. They get rich in the most diminishing ways, living lives of beggars and thieves. THAT's why they are discriminated , not their skin color and race, we've got no problem with native americans here and they look very similar, but they know how to live with dignity. Bharat chintalpudi Aryans did not migrate into India from Eurasia. The Ancestral North Indians generally migrated into India from Europe a couple of tens of thousand years ago. They together with the Iranians later formed the Aryan culture civilization. Arya was never a race but a cultural geographic identity. This is if not a fact, at least the most likely story history and science suggest today. And yes its pretty ridiculous of a few europeans coming here and posting comments like 'take your people back India, we don't want them.' If you really consider the country of origin as the actual place of belonging, lets all pack our bags and move to Africa, because thats where all of us came from. Migration has always been a part of evolution of human societies. Its not always favourable to the hosts. Kosovo Gypsies are very civilized compared to the ones further East. when properly socialised with and given an opportunity to better themselves. - that's exactly the problem, how do you do that ? Because they are very tribal, they live in their own communities, with their own laws. You can separate a few and educate them, but you can't do that with their society as a whole. Just as a fun fact, they still sell their children in 2018 and practice slavery in countries that are now in the European Union, but politicians and authorities turn a blind eye to that. 12 year old girls being forced to marry, or sent to work as whores because their family has debt, that's a normal thing here. Thank you! My Gr-Grandfather came from the old country' w/ all his siblings all but the one who went back to join the military back in the old country welcomed, integrated with the Eastern European (German) favored culture and thrived as valuable members everywhere they lived until they settled down in the St. Louis area pre-depression. They took up trades, gave years of blood, sweat and tears building homes, sharing benevolently, outliving spouses babies dying of TB contributed to their church. Our family pew still bears our strong ethnic name 100 years later. 1 of my grandfathers cousins became one of the most sincere priests you'd ever meet. The dirty gypsy' side is one that most of the older family don't like to discuss due to the stigma. It's taken a while for us younger family to get back around to honoring and appreciating our roots where it's been due. If you can't intelligently discern ethnic groups, you're going to just look ignorant judgmental. Roma have a lot of hurdles from the get go. I need to point out though, Mason, that a direct and unquestionable link between the Irish Travellers and the India-derived Gypsies has yet to be established. Which is of course not easy seeing as they are both groups that are not particularly willing to participate in any sort of genetic research. But from what we now know, the ITs are almost undistinguishable from the indigenous Irish, they are also of predominantly Celtic stock. In fact, just googling their pictures tells you as much: remove the tacky tracksuits and fancy dresses, replace them with some regular clothing of an average middle-class Dublin family and nobody would know any better. It's also important to remember that the ITs have been attested in Ireland as early as the 1300s, which is some 300 years before the India-Gypsy migration to the British Isles. Now granted, their vocabulary is in some 10 of Romani origin, however the most plausible explanation would be that the India-Gypsies simply assimilated into a greater Celtic IT community and that's the reason for the numerous Romani loanwords in their language. 1:27 As a matter of fact, we know for certain it was the Gypsies who antagonized their European hosts first. This is evident in written records: at first the Gypsies were perceived as a colorful minority, they were often invited to play music at weddings and even engage in fortune telling for the blast of it. But when people caught on to the fact that their purses tended to mysteriously disappear after encountering the Gypsies and that trying to confront them about it would usually end in tears, well, that's when the persecution started. It's similar to the Jews. They were liked at first, nobody gave a damn abot the fact that they had Jesus killed or anything. It was after they made a name for themselves as shark loans as well as collaborationists (the local Jews were instrumental in the swift Muslim conquest of the erstwhile Christian Levant, North Africa, Iberia and Anatolia) that they began to be hated with a passion by the general populace. Yes, there were people doing that before. Only problem is, when an average Christian in Al-Andalus knew one Christian who collaborated with the Muslims, he also knew ten others who did not. With Jews on the other hand, basically all of them were at the very least sympathetic to the Muslims. That's why they were kicked out in 1492. I mean, what were they expecting? That the Christians would be pretending like nothing was the matter? The same goes with the Gypsies. They weren't the only group who engaged in stealing. But they were by far the only group who did so overwhelmingly. So they bore the brunt of collective responsibility later down the line.	Nothing	Youngsters	1/115	0.87

Sai Teja, do you have a lot of culture ? Indeed you have. And I hear there are some challenges you have to pass to become a real gypsy. For women: How many TV sets can you take out of the store under the skirt. Pee standing up in the middle of the street. Shower as rarely as you can. Make at least 10 children and abandon them in the hospital or into a garbage can. For men: Pickpocket 100 wallets in an hour. Get drunk and sing as loudly as you can to annoy the neighbours. Stab 10 enemies with your ninja sword. And the last but not the least: don't work steal everything you find.	Gypsy	Roma	1/117	0.855

I have known a couple of Ramani people, and they were not thieves or criminals. One cannot make sweeping generalizations about any ethnic group, as I am sure there are many who are so assimilated into their surroundings that nobody knows that they are Romani at all. The word Gypsy comes from a mistaken belief that they were from Egypt. The word Bohemian, as in non-conventional, comes from the belief that they were from the nation of Bohemia. As for Ramani or Ram? My theory is that it was derived from the Indian God Ram AKA Rama.	Ethnic	Ethnicity	1/97	1.031

The situation in Bulgaria is basically the same as everywhere on the Balkans but in some aspects it's much worse. In particular, there is a significant number of municipalities in the country where the population has dwindled significantly over the past few decades due to mass emigration and economic decline. The demographical gap created by these negative processes was filled up mainly by RABBITly growing Gypsy communities. Unfortunately, thanks to their breeding habits, they have severely outnumbered the locals in many places. The locals, who are predominantly elderly people, suffer daily from criminal atrocities perpetrated by members of the so-called Romani tribe - mainly burglaries, which, at times, result in violent beatings of old men and women, who initially refused to let go of their money and other valuables willingly. Moreover, this situation has turned into a never-ending nightmare for the aged inhabitants, since almost none of them have nearby any younger relatives to rely on, and the number of policemen, assigned to patrol around the villages, is highly insufficient. So, tell me, please, how is it possible not to harbour a certain degree of animosity towards the ethnic group in question? By the way, the situation I described is just a small fracture of the whole picture called Problems we have with our dark-skinned brethren .	Ethnic	Ethnicity	1/216	0.463

Sometimes there is a big similarity between african people doing their business on the mediteranian beach, the gipsy people who work in the european capitals and the poor indian people (see slam dog millionaire) living in India. And you can't help then to conclude that poverty is a key factor in their criticized lifestyle. But gipsy people are special, similar to the jews, (possibly due to their outcast nature), they have those strong family bonds and a powerful will to keep their traditions unchanged (even the flawed ones). And this is why it is hard to integrate them. Even when you listen to their music, most of the time it's about a nomad life, love, partying, having fun and being maintaining their identities. A key part missing in this video is the fact that for 300 years they lived as slaves, and yet they manage to survive. I see the romani/gypsy people representing the sanguine nature of Europe, together with the latin nations and their ideal place for living could be India, or for the most civilized of them in England (as in snatch). First of all, I am curious about one thing what makes you think that I am racist ?. Secondly , you are right .Jews suffered the same oppression as the Gypsies. Jews were also excluded from the native societies. But unlike Gypsies , they didn't resort to stealing and prostitution becasue their religion deemed those acts as sin. Jews were also banned to work in traditional professions like bricklaying, ironworking, blacksmithing, carpentry...in some parts of Europe. As a result of this, they exceled in trade and became wealthier . In 19th and 20th century, it also caused them to go to universities in high numbers and became lawyer, doctor,architect and engineers. Different societies react differently against discrimination. In the case of Jews, f we leave out the massacres, it worked to their advantage.	Racist	Ethnicity	1/133	0.752

Sabyasachi Singh I understand your point of view, but your attitude is naive. I don't say people feel hate everytime they see Gypsies. The most of people don't care. If Gypsies watch their business, then they watch their own business too. Gypsy's behavior won't change even if you show big love to them. On the contrary, typical Gypsy will use you. They are being taught to steal and hate white majority from childhood. To be honest, the hate is much more stronger from Gypsies against white majority. Gypsies are much more hateful when it comes to racial/ethnic idenity. It's Gypsies who should do some steps to improve relations between them and others. White majority already did a lot of steps - for example, Gypsies are getting houses for free, but Gypsies destroy them in a few years, sell all metallic furnishings and then they demand a new house for free, because the old house they already destroyed. If you come with love to them, they just use you and spit into your face. Daradajee Yes and I'm saying they are not Dravidian. Low caste north Indians are still Indo Aryan. Just darker because they work menial jobs, out all day in the sun. South India has its own low castes. They are Dravidian. Dark skinned does not automatically equate to Dravidian. Romani also comes from Rome. The original Romani were enslaved by the Seljuk Turks who eventually ended up in Asia Minor (modern Turkey) with their Indian slaves. At the time Asia Minor was part of the Byzantine Empire, but that's what we call them in the West. The Byzantines considered themselves to be Roman, so the official name of the Byzantine Empire was the Roman Empire. Eventually the Sultanate of Rum seceded from the Seljuk Empire. As much of their territory was conquered from the Byzantines (or the Romans), they took the name Rum. The Romani people also took their name fro the Sultanate of Rum. So in a very indirect way, the Romani are also named after the Romans.	Indian	Native-American	1/120	0.833

Lampavaja Nyasha in fact the Romanian culture is the opposite of the Roma culture . Eg. In the past when Roma people were marrying the woman didn't need a certain inheritance to marry. Usually in the Indian culture the man has to pay for the wife and take her to his home to live with his family. Same for Roma people. The Romanian wedding was exactly the opposite, the woman was purchasing the man by using her inheritance. There is a special name for it. Also Romanians have a novel about a peasant who marries a woman for financial reasons. It is named Ion by Liviu Rebreanu. One century ago women had to give land , properties or to work if they had no family to marry (except if an idiot believed in true love and accepted a poor woman). Usually the woman was the provider of the materials for the building of a house. The man bulids the house using the woman's land and resources such as wood. The woman and the man are working and used to work together elbow to elbow according to the old newspapers and documents such as foreigners diaries or journals. They left the family. Usually when a peasant was marrying he was sending another peasant with the food cooked by his parents a bottle of the stongest alcoholic beverages (named Palinka , a kind of Vodka but made of fruits) , the peasant had to wear traditional clothes and hold the national flag. He was riding the horse until he reached the woman 's house. She had to send the same person later with the answer. Women got more respect, freedom and responsabilities in the past in the Romanian culture . Women had the right to work as tailors or in the literature domain , they were allowed to work in publishing houses , be actresses or singers,	Old	Over 65s	1/563	0.178

Re: Elena Stanica Listen you dumb bitch. Go relearn the history of India and its people. I come from the state of Punjab in India and we certainly do not buy the girls as you say. You are confusing us with Islamic nations because you are so secluded in your knowledge of the world. In most parts of India the parents of the girls have to pay a dowry which is money, gold, and other resources to the boy upon marriage not the other way around as you are saying. Secondly Indians don't run when an enemy comes to our door step. Alexander the Greats Empire ended on the western front of the Indian subcontinent at the Bias River and there was a reason for that. He knew if he went forth it would be the end of him. Your historians write differently that he was tired of conquering but the fact is he retreated from that land and ran back to where he came from. A man who had conquered the most powerful rule in all of Europe and then further conquered the Persians all the way to the edges of India and runs back from the people you try to call fearful(Indian). We have fought many wars, lost many and won many over the years as all nations have. At a certain point we were the richest nation on the planet and for a long time indeed that was the reason why Alexander and later the British and the rest of Europeans where trying to find their way to us, to loot us. At that time your nations were poor and desolate. Now that your nations have some wealth you seem to question us and who we are with your misinformation. Aromanians speak a dialect of Romanian that is over 95 mutually intelligible in written form with Romanian (about 80 during speech because of the accent difference). So, no, they can't be different people. Also in Greece they call Aromanians Vlahii Mavrovlahii or Cutsovlahii" , so it's self explanatory. If they where Illyrians then they would have developed a language breaking away directly from Vulgar Latin rather than Romanian and it would have resembled the Dalmatian language. Also, Aromanian only has negligible Slavic words , so no slavic connection there. Actually, in Romania we say that Aromanian is Romanian without the Slavic words (10 Slavic vocabulary in Romanian (less than 5 in modern speech) and less than 2 in Aromanian). They are the descendants or Romanian shepherds seasonally migrating with their flock throughout the Balkans, most of which eventually abandoned the trade and settled down in other Ottoman-controlled territories in Europe . It's true, though, that phenotypically they resemble more with Greeks than Romanians. Another group of people are the Istro-Romanians, they also inhabit ancient-Illyrian lands, now part of Croatia. Their origin is well known, they are farmer-migrants from Banat region of South-West Romania who settled in the Istrian peninsula in 2 waves, the first around 900 A.D. attested by works of Emperor Constantine VII and a second larger wave after the Black Death wiped out many inhabitants of the area in the 1300 A.D. Rom has no nation meaning and means just man or husband, there is no link to Rome(Roma in Latin) and that was at best fascist wild Hungarian dreams. Gypsies never had any link with Rome, there are not even hints, Rom has the variants Lom and Dom, who are related with the Sanskrit words dam-pati (lord of the house, husband), dama (to subdue), lom (hair), lomaka (hairy), loman, roman (hairy), roma a (man with beard and long hair), doma (member of a low caste of travelling musicians and dancers). Aleks Kevyn You should learn, before spreading funny lies and hate about Romanians, that Hungarian chauvinism produced Trianon. So you are right, lies, and I will ad madness, can lead to crappy things. Beside of some salty kids, nobody in Romania care if Americans or the Englishmen can or not make the difference. And their native Gypsy word(Rom and Roma(plural)) for man was known by Romanians, and was known that was used by the Englishmen in the form Romani or Roma for the Gypsy nation of England, but nobody expected that idiots who cannot make a difference and hateful ignorant scums from other countries will have the power to write and spread their no brain conclusions in English. Pericolo L.A. In fact Istro-Romanians, Aromanians are more related to Romanians of Transylvania, Banat, Maramuresh and Moldova than to Megleno-Romanians and Romanians of Southern Transylvania, Oltenia, and Muntenia in some aspects like words taken from vulgar Latin. Also, Romanians of Maramuresh, Northern and Central Transylvania , Banat and Moldova are more related to Aromanians than to Romanians from Oltenia and Muntenia and Southern Transylvania, even if the language had evolved and we understand more better the last ones. I think there were some differences between regions of Roman Empire in terms of natives, Getae and Thracians of the East and Dacians and Dardanians of the west. when they took the language, different sources and the time they took it. For example the east(not including Moldovans who are in fact western Romanians from Maramuresh) say varz to cabbage, while the west or the north say curechi, curet'i. From that we can see the western part, Dacians and Dardanians took Latin more early then the East, Getae and Thracians, because varz comes from green viridis - vir(i)dia who had the meaning of cabbage a bit latter, while curechi from vulgar coliculus from classical cauliculus was the word for cabbage as a base (l-r shift, drop of the termination , change of i to e will give an early curecu in western Romanian, who would palatalize c and would force u to drop and will make C to sound t' or chi having today curechi(more fluent) and curet'i more old. But is good to know that dialects of the Romanian, North and South of Danube, appeared late in the game, before that there were just some minor difference in terms of vocabulary like the	Ethnic	Ethnicity	1/552	0.181

First of all, you had lots of romance languages and former nations inside your borders, so of course for you reality and languages are not important, because your country is made ignoring that, and reverting to a past where Italians wore all Romans, so united. No problem for me, but is good to see where your bias comes from. Italy is more of a concept, is like we would be calling ourselves Dacians(some mad idiots do that and are the laughing stoke of Romanian society) For us the language was the driving force, and is the only true base for a nation. Civic nations(like Italy, UK Spain, France are based on borders or utopias and are less strong in terms of unity. Well, France is strong, having less separatists, almost none, while Spain is on fire). Blood nations do not exist, because there are no pure nations, so language is very important. Now, you are wrong in every aspect, you are dead wrong. 1. Romanians are almost the only romance people who preserved the name, the only big Romance nation. 2. Romanians have more or the same cultural ties with Rome than any other former Romans. Some of them: Like eating fat pig like the roman legions on a daily bases, considering the beard a primitive custom, preserving Saturnalia customs like sacrificing the pigs on 20 Dec, almost the whole Romanian Christmas is a copy of Saturnalia, the new year celebration with popular songs remembering Trajan(plowing the field of Dacia), pastoral traditions etc. 3. I don't think that you can find a perfect roman discendent because of the invasion all over europe and I don't consider myself as an historical Roman even if I'm from Rome 4. You're wrong if you consider yourself Roman (see point two) 5. I even speak Romanian so I'm not that ignorant 6. Stop it. You keep continue to accuse people. I think you have some sort of inferiority complex or probably you've been in Italy and they didn't treat you well. 7. I don't know why you talk about Fascism but. 8. Did I say something about slavs? I just said that a language doesn't indicate a culture totally. Before you had more slavic words (this is a fact). You even got German words and Greek words that doesn't mean you're german (even if there are a lot of germans in Romania). Personally I know a lot of Romanians here in Italy (there are 2 millions of Romanians) and they all hate Hungarians even if they're in part. I mean Transilvania was Hungarian 100 years ago. Roberto Agnello Well, if you insist, i should respond! Is not the same thing, and probably for you is not a big deal to talk about invented languages and conspiracies, but some Hungarian nuts, Bulgarian nuts, Russian nuts and Romanian nuts might believe you. You see, in the middle of Europe, not Mediterana, this concepts killed tens of millions. (Still kill in Donets and Lugansk) You clearly do not read my texts, I do not visit Europe, I will not visit Italy, and I consider Romanians, who say we are not guilty in part for how people see us, as unrealistic. Romanians had and have more bad morals than most of EU, have a complex culture, but inferior in terms of philosophy, in comparison to USA and UK, due to clear factors. The texts are above. Sorry, you have one problem with your you are mad for nothing , the texts are there. Quote For example Romanian has been latinized about 100 years a go. It was a mixture between slavic and romance language (more slavic) It's black on white, Romanian is an artificial language who was more Slavic than Latin in the past! You said that! Is there. Then you said that the Government had something to do with it, of course! So that is history revisionism. You know, like Ukraine is an artificial fascist nation, who stole her lands from Russia, Hungary, Poland and Romania, so let's bring 'democracy' with green mercenaries and covert missions and conquer Ukraine So my posts are on point! For your Romanian culture, the only policy in this mater was the national-socialist policy in the times of Ceau escu, who was totally against Rome! Christopher Quinn How Romanians could rape and enslave you in Hungary, if you are a Gypsy of Hungary? Romania conquered Hungary just one time in 1919, alone, and from what I remember our Generals wore not harsh on the population, but the contrary. The only bad side for Hungary was that the army just pillaged some Infrastructure and assets, as a payback for the 1916-1917 economic pillaging made by the German Empire and Austria Hungary in Oltenia and Muntenia occupied by them. I preffer term Gypsy, over Roma/Romani, because we already have Romania, which is actualy not a Gypsy state. Romanians are actualy true Romans, unlike Italians, Romanians, are actualy descendants of Roman Settlers, that settled those lands when the roman empire still existed. Their Language and Culture is even simmiliar. They are more Roman than the Germanic Italians , who are actualy mostly descendants of the Lombards, because true romans in Rome were killed by dieseases, earthquakes catastrophes, and Invasions, as well as Wars, which they waged before all those bad things happened. Goths, when they invaded rome, destroyed the city, and killed many of the people in it. And they were Germanics too. Same thing, happened to Greece, Except, it was Slavs, not Germans(Well Goths invaded greece too, before the slavs...), that mainly did the job, of creating the current Greeks. And the Turks. But Romania is a melting pot too, just, their roots, are actualy more romans, than the rest of the world. However, take what I said with grain of salt : Things are actualy much more complicated, and I'm just simplifying it here.	Gypsy	Roma	1/185	0.541

Well, I'm a Hungarian Rom (natural born citizen of Hungary and all), and as a Roma person, I can tell you that we Romani are indeed White like, we are significantly European. Many of us are between 25 and 75 White European, and this all goes back about approximately 800 years of our 1,200 years in Europe. That being said, I would love for you to try to tell a Romanichal, Welsh Kale or Finnish Kale person that they're not White. (They are literally as White looking and genetically European as what every passes for White in the minds' of today's racists, as they tend to be over 75 White.) Also, we were raped and enslaved in what is now modern day Romania by Romanians (see Vlach Roma of Transylvania) and many of us share common Romanian ancestries. And, as you apparently do not know, our name means husbands/men/people . It is pure coincidence that our Hindi-derived name resembles the name of those who made us distinctly European in the first place. In regard to your whole Hungarians hating Romanians-thing, that's because Europeans of all shapes, colors and sizes, including Hungarians, hate Romania and is people. (Everyone from politicians to athletes unfortunately hate Romanians.) Drago well germany has also been invaded at multiple times by the people you mentioned, plus the awares, vikings, swedes, danes, spanish, french, polish lithuanians etc. I think the main reason for the discrepancy is simply the failure of communism. germany had to restart at 0 in 1945, as pretty much everything was utterly destroyed and most men were dead, crippled, or in captivity, plus having a refugee crisis by the entire remaining people of eastern prussia and silesia had to flee their homeland. So we started at the worst conditions imaginable, being also forced to let other countries take hold of the little natural resources we have, and yet the western part strived, becoming at one point the biggest exporteur world wide, while our eastern part had a head start and was doing better in the early years, but later failed and collapsed like all communist countries. Today we are still the third biggest exporteur world wide, but due to the burden of reunification, we didn't have nearly the growth, nor any rising real payment since 1990, plus we had/ have to put billions into rebuilding and modernizing, while also facing the problem of all the young people leaving the east, while the rest has problems finding work and as a society with a disproportional amount of radical political trouble (extreme amount of neo nazis and left wing extremists compared to the rest). As eastern germany had the benefit of having a rich country to reunify with after the collapse of the soviets, the aftermath might not be as apparent as in other former east block countries, yet it still demonstrates in my oppinion, that the 45 years of communism had way more influence on todays prosperity of its former countries, than the centuries prior.	Refugee	Nationality	1/296	0.338

The confusion of romani and romanians is the punishmant for the llater for faking their history and language. Today Romania has always been part of the bulgarian history , language was bulgarian ... and then leaving separated from Danube and time to develop in its own identity in the 500 years otoman empire, romanian founding fathers grab this strong nation building idea -decendents of romans and here we are....geneticaly no diference between bulgarians and romanians, interested romanians may look at maps and will see many toponim names in both countries , but actually have meaning in bulgarian only.... THEO the agenda shill, gipsy is autonomous for neromi. Specifically, the term gypsy is an exon (name given by others, from the outside). For example, to understand, I am of Roma origin, in my romanes' language I say to the bulgarians, o das , we call them turkish xoraxian and the germans say gadskeno . But we use the phrase pledge in the sense that they are strangers, outside of our ethnicity. If we judge with the same measure of measure, it means the name is the correct answer given to the bulgarians from the romans, or the correct denomination of bulgarians and all peoples is as those peoples are recommended? And the japanese were saying waeni before, and romanians in Romania used to call themselves valahi and the germans call themselves deutch , but idiots do not know that every people has the right to identity ... Bulgarians do well to learn history! We know who the Bulgarians are and what their origins are, but they are not very educated to know that a name can not be given immutable, that is, always. And if you still say that the name of the gypsy is ok, adopt you will have the name of gypsies, so that I can call you in my speech as the Bulgarian turkey crow , then to debit that is the correct denunciation of the crows Anatolian Bulgarian, the one that comes from my speech. And the English gipsy , for the precarious culture of Bulgarians and many, comes from Greek and means Egyptian . THEO the agenda shill, you know nothing about the origins of the Roma and the name of the Roma, but even the most racist Nazi such as hitler knew where we came from and he knew our correct name was Roma because he knew he had migrated into three waves at various stages in the areas different of India, and that's what we call sinti und Roma . The term Roma is an umbrella term to sum up the entire Roma ethnicity. Feel, is the name of the inhabitants of Karachi district, known today, Sindh. But it is a regional name and so. What you do not know and you like, uneducated and without general culture, and what I say, can confirm a german, as the name zigeuner in german meant, thief, the one who steals. It is a masked, racist and perioratian denomination, just as the name jidani , which means moneymen . If you know that I call them gypsies in Bulgaria, I am absolutely sure that most bulgarians do not know the true history that the old anatolian turks coming from the Volga and being part of a turkish people called Bolgar. But if the slavs assimilated you and adopted the slavonic language and the cyrillic script, it meant that you had the right to self-definition. I understand that only gypsies remain gypsies like. Jamm6, some in Romania, I tell the Brazilians, crows. Would it be right? If you do not know the etimology of the gypsy word, it would be better to get a job before, because many do not know that the term gypsy was in the past a name that meant a social state, that of slaves, that is, of slaves. So when you say gypsies, you say former slaves.	Gypsy	Roma	1/69	1.449
Alex Plante, Wrong. It is well known that the name rome comes from the ancestors of the Italians, etruscans, but no one knows that the etruscans were dravidian generations. So, you are doing an imitation of who the dravidians are, and where their basic origins come from, then you will see why the roma people call themselves ” roma ”, because that name is an entomology originating in India and designating an avatar, such as Egiptyan, Ra, or that of the ancient Indians, Ram, or Rama. So, this denomination, rom, does not come from the latin, but was taken from their etruscan ancestors, who were of dravidian origin. I know it seems to be impossible to believe, but the historical paintings and archaeologists in Italy and other areas also proves linguistically and historically that the etruscans were dravidian. Not as the Italian historians did not know who their ancestors were, but the europeans did not admit that the common ancestor of man would be the African.	Common	Working class	1/166	0.602

KronixBB, Such stereotypes always exist. Well, learn from me, like the two shameful chapters in your country's history, the collective slavery of the Roma that lasted for half a millennium (1385-1857, the deportation and killing of a large group of Roma and Jews during the 1940s in Romania), I am the hardest forms of discrimination and racism and the majority Romanians in Romania. As to the diligence of the majority Romanians, the shameful history of Romania contradicts, because the collective Romania is clearly a form of economic and social exploitation. You know what the saying goes: if the work was good, the boyars would take it. So, all the historians know that the majority Romanians are a thief, a traitor, and a murderer and a bitch, even when they used to talk and call the Wallachian.	Racism	Ethnicity	1/137	0.73

Knowledge, Wrong and erroneous terror with the Dacians, because European historians deny that the common ancestor of man is African. So the racists also invented Aryan theory, because they do not admit that their ancestors come from Africa! Although, migration is recognized and adopted by most DNA scientists, the Dacians were Scythians (Iranians). Thrace, was the name of all Thracian citizens of whatever origin. Always the Indians beat the face of the Iranians that they were one and the same when they lived on the Indus Valley, the Iranians beat their face to the Turks reminding them that you forgot that they were descending from the Iranians, and so the Bulgarian, Bulgarians, omit that they were drawn from the Turks . But the so-called Indo-European peoples are actually those from Asia. I always beat the face of the Greeks coming from Asia, the island of Lidia and Crete, always knocking the cheeks of the so-called Italians whose ancestors were Etruscan Dravidian. As for the Dacians and the so-called Latino Italians, although the Latins were those in the Latium area (today Lazio), they forget that Latins are now in the present, and the Slavs are from the sixth century, as do the Iranian Dacians . This explains why the Romanian and Italian historians did not want to reveal the truth about such mysterious Dacian and Etruscan figures, because they were ashamed to be a nation	Common	Working class	1/234	0.427

sd8c, I bet European schools have not taught history history that the great Alexander of Macedonia was beaten by the Indians in Patli Patna when he tried to penetrate other cities. I bet that at the times of history in Europe it was mentioned that the numerical system was invented by the Arabs and that they were called Arabic figures. But the merit belongs to the Indians and is called Indian art. I do not miss the theory of European racists with the Aryans who invaded India and their faces civilized, because Muller's theory is nothing else but to support the superiority of the European race to the negroid. But these are false theories that only prove to be rabid idiots with sham ideologies. But, as a matter of fact, the Islamic people do not confuse the tradition of the Indians when they engage or marry the bikindel (buy / sell the body), with pokindel (to buy the girl's dowry, the sacredness and purity of the face). In Florence when someone begs for money in the streets for years without ever learning decent Italian, without looking for any job and while wearing clothes that look tipical of a different ethnic group it's very easy for that person to be seen as a zingaro , which is a bit like gipsy but a bit more offensive. I don't even know if those beggars are really of any ethnicity different than mine to be fair. There are many actual gipsies (I think the majority) that live super normal lives, look for jobs, work, send their children to school and things like that but I guess that nobody cares about them, ok these integrated and normal people are the majority of gipsies but why should I care, they're simply my fellow Italians and normal people and there's nothing strange about that. What is interesting is that I saw some black immigrants come, learn Italian, settle down, meanwhile some gipsies (the minority of them) continue to be nomadic, make everything dirty and sometimes harrass people for money (this is not a serious issue though)	Ethnicity	Ethnicity	1/182	0.549

This video about the Roma has certainly stirred up old animosities from almost the entirety of Eastern Europe. Everyone appears to agree that they are thieving, workshy, lowlifes, but is that because of their inherent nature or because, due to discrimination, there is no other way for them to live? I am not trying to make excuses for criminality but if people are shunned and excluded from mainstream society it is not surprising that they would adopt an anti social lifestyle. If they have no other choice it is hardly rocket science to see how they would embrace criminality as everyone has to survive somehow. Included in this video was a passing comment regarding Irish Travellers. I am not an expert but despite having superficially similar lifestyles I do not think that they are related to the Roma, either racially or culturally. Kinda, but we were also targeted for genocide (twice), are still segregated, no one cares about us, are literally the most Whitewashed group in Hollywood (even non-White people parade around on screen as us), and are arguably, very genetically different from many of our ancestors. That being said, we are actually not Indian . We left India 1,500 years ago, and even though we usually possess 25 to 75 South Asian heritage, we are a distinctly European peoples. (I use peoples because we are comprised of numerous sub-groups and each group has varying degrees of Whiteness and Brownness. Calling us Indian is like calling a Sephardic person only Middle Eastern North African, instead of mixed Spanish and pre-European Jewish. At the end of the day, the Sephardi are distinctly European, whilst still being of non-White Jewish heritage, but are usually seen as White and European because of their considerable Iberian heritage. We too, are arguably White and are never 90 Indian the same way that African-Americans can be 90 Sub-Saharan African. Like, you don't have to be bi-racial or have had a White slave master ancestor to be African-American and conversely, you don't have to even be the descendant of an American slave (e.g., Haitian, Brazilian, Puerto Rica, etc.) to be Black, and even some cases African-American. If you're Black, you're still Black and aren't entirely separate from your pre-slavery ancestors. Also, calling us Indian would mean that all Desi people living in Europe and facing discrimination would also be considered Romani, which just isn't the case. A man from Punjab who immigrates to Hungary and has a child with a Magyar women wouldn't produce a Roma child. Still, I appreciate your analogy.	Indian	Native-American	1/283	0.353

True. But I mean, like, that's also only going 400 years back so many groups would still have those haplogroups even it their genes were recessive because there's been different degrees of rape and intermarriage. Like, you're completely right, I'm must saying that we are definitely of Indian and other South Asian heritage, but we are not Indian . :)	Indian	Native-American	1/59	1.695

Europeans have for hundreds of years harassed the Romani and denied them equal positions in our society, and then after treating them like that for some centuries we blame them for the non-integration we forced on them(just scroll through all the negative comments here and see for yourself). Yet I have several Romani descendant friends who've had to tell me of their origin before I knew, they were as integrated and Norwegian as anyone else. The old Romani population here is more or less completely integrated by now, it's the never arrivals from Russia the past century, and now in later years from Balkan, which are not. And seeing that they can do, and does do, well in Latin America, it's obvious to me it's the treatment they have received that is the cause of their problems, and not the other way around. If you treat someone as shit for years and years, guess what will happen to them. You try doing that to anyone and the result will be pretty sad, try it on your own child of you want to test it out, all humans are results of our surroundings. Taken for example African American. The crime rate among African American is higher than any African country, with the exception of Lesotho, Namibia and South Africa(which by the way is probably the three countries where the colonial rule and Apartheid had the most oppressing results). So obviously it's the treatment of African American which is the cause of their high crime rate, and not genetics. This is as evident as it gets. And the same goes with the Romani. It's the people who write hateful comments here about the Romani, which is exactly the cause for the problems from the Romani. These haters are in essence shitting on their own legs, in a wider context. What a	Racist	Ethnicity	1/351	0.285

Lots of groups have been shat on and did well. Jews, Asian immigrants. Chinese Malayans, Igbos of Nigeria. These groups have been historically and in some cases still persecuted and do quite well for themselves. The main reason African Americans don't do as well is that they're southern. Actually many disparities between Whites and blacks in the US run very similar to disparities between Northern and Southern Americans. Paul Muntean This whole they refuse to integrate argument again? You're missing my point, you're not really arguing against any of my hypothesis. I've already said they have integrated well in a lot of places, like here in Scandinavia, and across the pond as well. So if your whole they refuse to integrate argument is to work, you need to explain why they chose to integrate other places. My hypothesis is the chances they were given. You cannot blame people for not taking chances they were never really given. The place in Europe where they are the least integrated is in Eastern Europe, which also happens to be the most racist place of all of Europe. You think that's a coincidence? If you have a different claim you have to explain what that claim is, and why it is so, not just come with the simplistic they refuse to integrate! utterance. And you think all that is happening because some generations ago, they were oppressed? It takes more that a couple of generation to change a culture. It's a long process. And the way to start it, is not to say stuff like what has been said in this comment section. They're not the only minority that suffered oppresion in the past. For example, during WW2, jews had the same treatment, maybe even worse, yet they managed to integrate. The Jews integrated more or less long before WW2. They were in the core of European culture for centuries, producing so many of our scientists, philosophers, inventors, capitalists etc. Now they've all either been slaughtered, or moved to Israel and America - and we've lost unthinkable potential in the European Ashkenazim Jews(which have an average IQ of about 110-115, the only ethnic group more intelligent than East Asians) - our oppression	Ethnic	Ethnicity	1/544	0.184

Victor. When you say dont promote this marxist bullshit on east-europeans Then I'm sorry, but eastern Europe is already destroyed by Marxism. Have you forgotten that already? Communism made it impossible for people to create capital in legal ways, the only way to get ahead in Eastern-Europe before the 90s was in illegal black market activities. Which is why all the capitalists in Eastern Europe has a criminal background. Look up any Russian billionaire and you'll find a guy who was a top criminal in the 80s. let me tell you a true story. a radio station from bucharest, romania offered an old gypsy musician a sum of money to come and record some jingles for them. all the work was done in one day, and the payment was delivered, as per contract. now the jingles had so much success that the radio station, which had nothing in common with gypsy culture, decided to reward the old gypsy singer by offering him a monthly pension. the radio station went into bankruptcy after a few years, therefore couldn't afford to keep sending them the pension. how were they thanked for givint the singer's family some money every month with no obligation and then stopping when they couldn't afford anymore? well of course by being bombarded with angry phonecalls, being cursed at threatened for failing to pay what they owed . you could say this was an isolated incident, but every person who has to deal with such people daily knows it's better to avoid them completely. and if they have to avoid them, they of course want them gone. can't blame people for this. believe, we have tried, for 100 years we have tried. Talis - da - Man educate urself on some facts and history : There has never been such a country called Palestine. Israel was RE-formed on land previously ruled by the Ottoman empire, similarly to other countries in the region such as Lebanon, Iraq and others. There is no such thing as Palestinian people . It's worth noting that newspapers such as the 'Palestine post' were Jewish newspapers (this one for example turned into the 'Jerusalem post'). This is also true about other official Palestine related stuff from the time before Israel was RE-formed. If you happened to say Palestinian before the RE-formation of Israel, you were actually referring to the Hebrews living in the land, not the Arabs. Take a look at this flag book from 1939 (3rd row on the right): imgur.com/a/4hlH2 The term Palestine was later discarded, as it should have been, because the original name for the land - Israel, has been restored (it's simple: Israel is not Palestine, just like Jerusalem is not Aelia-Capitolina, and Schem is not Nablus). It is only in the mid 1960's that the Arabs hijacked the term, and its widespread usage only took off after the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. the Arabs used this terminology as a political propaganda tool to de-legitimize Israel, after they failed to steal the Hebrew homeland by force with the Arab armies, by invading and attempting to conquer the land. Ironically, the term Palestinian originate from the term 'Pleshet' to describe INVADERS by the Hebrews. Those who willingly identify as Palestinians are declaring themselves to be invaders/colonizers in Hebrew land. It's important to note that this propaganda tool was supported by the Communists/Soviets. On the other hand, just a few decades before that,	Common	Working class	1/1581	0.063

I'm a British Anthropologist and DNA evidence shows that Romani people are actually from eastern Europe. The languages spoken in the whole region are indo-european languages, so it doesn't say anything. In a particular period, they have been used as sex slaves by war mongers and have got mixed with romans, various eastern Europeans and middle eastern invaders. Anyway, your comment shows the level of racisim in your own countries and why the countries you live in never came close to any country which was ruled by the British empire. I found this thread pretty interesting to read through. My own experiences with Romani/Gypsies began with a Bosnian Serb girlfriend in Vojvodina who primarily kept warning me to be careful every time we were walking around and passed some Gypsies. We once went to Ireland together in 2007, just after Schengen had opened up to some of the Romani, and passed several groups of Gypsies on a bus ride from Dublin to Galway. And each time we passed them, she laughed at what she perceived as ignorance concerning Schengen, namely that she believed that Western Europe would soon be overrun by Romani. I later had a Slavic Macedonian girlfriend in Skopje. She was poor and decided to live in a cheap part of Skopje that was about 50 Albanian Macedonians and 30 Macedonian Gypsies. While she lived there for about two years, she got to know some local Albanians and Romani as friends (rare for a Slavic Macedonian). At the time I already had some Albanian friends from Kosovo, but it was the first chance I'd ever really had to talk in depth with Gypsies. ls7orBust: Did a Cigani ever actually steal anything from you? You failed to mention any details. Planet Watcher: Thank you for the one comment amongst 31 that offered some insight: Maybe they refuse to integrate, because they hate your people out of past grievances. Get 5 Euros, give them five Euros, ask one to set around for a talk, offer them food to stay. Do not piss them off nor get angry towards. Jamie Johnson : Those who knew what Romani means are always sent to the racist area. If you are able to display such absurdities as proves than you finished the school only in your imagination. 1. Gypsies homeland is in northern India. They were one of the poorest casts there and they were forced to leave because they acted exactly as they do today. What they have in common with Eastern Europe? They found a place where they were relatively safe with the support obtained from the rulers, Ottoman Empire. Remember, in Germany and other Western countries they used to hang them if they were not burned alive. 2. The only languages that ARE NOT Indo-Europeans are Hungarian (there are a lot of gypsies in Hungary...), Finnish, Estonian, Basque, Maltese and few in Russia. So, saying that gypsies are from Eastern Europe because there is the space where the Indo-European languages are spoken is totally wrong. 3. You suppose to be only a British Anthropologist to sustain that DNA found on these people comes from Eastern Europe while all the companies show important percents of Eastern Asian in those people and almost nothing from the general DNA map of this region. You should understand that gypsies live in closed societies governed by their own rules and rulers. Therefore, a mixture with other people only accidentally happened. 4. Placing an equal sign between the Great British Empire and the Poor Countries of Eastern Europe is another, let's say, mistake. Brits were lucky to do not support the year by year assault of Ottomans, Russians, Habsburgs, and many many others. Also, to forget the horrors of the Communism is another display of infatuation and proves you have huge problems with the simplest	Racist	Ethnicity	1/591	0.169

Daniel either whatever you said, or some actual romaninan immigrants to western countries that swindle and steal have.. honestly whenever i talk to a eastern person who's left these places and actually wants to secure a decent life, they all say that the first people they avoid is their own ethnicity, because most are uneducated and trouble makers. We didn't get our reputation ruined by former slaves. We ruined it ourselves by stealing and cheating eachother and electing dumb theives as representatives. Stop blaming the people with literally the least power in this country. Our great grandparents had property and opportunities. These people had very little after slavery. And before industrialisation they used to do metalwork and other crafts. They were driven out of business. Then someone you probably consider a national hero decided to have them killed in ww2. Stating that gypsies were slaves and, by consequence, they should be understood in their wild actions is simply not working. I smell you are one of those democrats/liberals who are screaming all day against Trump, dream at open borders and act, why oh why, only with emotions to the power of 10. I cannot read a single reasonable line there. You said Romanians are to be blamed by their political choices, actions, and mentalities. Well, where I am living is a place with 7 million people and Romanians are seen as one of the best people: hardworking, etc. Keep in mind that the first gypsy I saw here was a beggar. Raise a lot of confusion when she asks money for the kids in... ROMANIA. I know is a simple example and we should not tend to transform and generalize but, STILL, I believe this should stop. Nothing moves if you stay and search imaginary guilts to some. It is the moment to step forward and understand why, for example, we need to leave our beautiful country. The problem is that no one is actually trying to change that,the goverment tries (that's a heavy word) to integrate , but the methods that our goverment uses, are just utterly pointless and i-logical. They don't try to destroy the ghettos, they don't try to finance schooling projects, they don't try to implement laws as they are implemented on bulgarians and other ethnicities in our country. No, they do nothing of that, instead, what they do is give them political leverage in elections, when political parties base their entire support on gypsies, they don't arrest them when they do something bad (unless the city or town they did in, protests or riots), so as to not be seen as racist. I remember in school,that when i slacked off or didn't go to school, i would immediately be threatened with expulsion from school, whereas gypsies could slack off the whole year and still pass the grade. Britain became powerful because it had the english channel to protect it from it's enemies so it didn't have to build an expensive army. America became powerful because it was the only industrialized economy left standing after WW2 (also the two oceans between it and any potential enemy helped). Western universities must be really fucking garbage if they're teaching you this in their anthropology courses (shame you never bothered to take a writing course apparently). Tell us about how much respect the British showed the Indians when they were plundering their country and treating them like shit. Tell us about how much respect the British showed to those Boer civilians they herded into literal concentration camps in a war that was entirely over taking gold and diamonds and nothing else. Nothing	Youngsters	1/60	1.667

You just don't get it do you buddy? I'm not saying that the Europeans are bad , just that they were a product of their circumstances - poor, uneducated and isolated, and therefore extremely xenophobic. Just like how Gypsies that steal are a product of their circumstances. When the Gypsies arrived in Europe, there simply was no option for them to integrate, because there's absolutely no way a medieval European village would welcome a bunch of different looking foreigners with a different language and religion. So yes, they began stealing, but to pretend that it's all black and white - that the Gypsies just have thievery built into their DNA would be just as ridiculous as an ancient roman saying that the germanic peoples have thievery built into their DNA because at the time they constantly raided roman borders. Modern Germans and Skandinavians don't roam around stealing shit anymore, and it has nothing to do with their genetics, it has to do with history.	Nothing	Youngsters	1/163	0.613

Andr s Valverde It seems like we don't actually disagree all that much. I guess my major argument is just that the larger/more powerful society is the one that will have to change first. I'm not saying that people should be okay with stealing or anything like that, but at the very least people need to stop believing that there's such thing as having theivery in your DNA like a lot of the racist commenters on this video seem to believe lol. From there they migrated to the rest of mainland Greece and formed the Greek ethnos. Crete was not Greek at that time, it was Minoan and Minoans were pre-Greeks. Anatolia was mostly Greek throughout history? So that is why it was not predominantly Greek until centuries after Christianity was founded? The ancient Anatolian languages went extinct in the 7th century.... before the Greeks even existed Anatolia was inhabited by peoples of various cultures that left Anatolian heritage like the oldest city atal y k (Which Greeks did not build). If Anatolia is not Greek, then explain me Smyrna, Halicarnassus, Brusa, Constantinople, Antioch, Trapezunt, Amaseia and many other places that are of Greek origin. Explain me, why Anatolia has so many Ancient Greek theatre, cities, graves, pottery and other signs of Greek. Explain me who built the Great Church of Constantinople? Explain me, why are the so called Turks not mongoloid, if they are from Central Asia. You are not Greek, nor Hellenic or something related to us, Greeks. Porton You are dumber than a stone that were used during the building of the Giza pyramid. That's not true, your ancestors did not create the third oldest civilisations. Elamites have the third oldest civilisation, however, they are now extinct. And the Indus Valley was Dravidian, not Indian. I use Hindu-Arabic numerals. However, creating numbers are not achievement. The real achievement were made by Ancient Greek. They mastered mathematics in absolutely new way. The Ancient Egyptians were great mathematicians before and the Ancient Mesopotamians too, but the Greek took their knowledge from them and evolved it into higher mathematics. In mathematics, you will usual find Greek letters, I wonder why. And even the word mathematics is Greek. Pythagoras and other Ancient Greeks were the first to discover unknown fields of mathematics. It's sad to see the desert cults dominating in my continent. Indo-European polytheism makes war more sense and is more comparable with God's rules than the desert religions. Polytheism is satanic and evil, however, I benefit from the knowledge.	Indian	Native-American	1/170	0.588

Elias What did i just say? By the time modern humans came to be, Erectus was only in Asia. Eurasians are only somewhere between 1-4 Neanderthal, you guys didn't evolve from Neanderthals, your ancestors just had sex with them and produced fertile children. And another thing, if Neanderthal DNA makes you automatically superior, then you should know that there are some Africans who actually do have Neanderthal heritage, like the San, the Masaai, and the Afar, just to name a few. I never said all humans are 100 the exact same, but you can't deny the fact that all human beings alive today are the same species and subspecies. The closest thing we would have to actual subspecies would be isolated populations like Australian Aboriginals and African Pygmies, and even they have a decent amount of non-Aboriginal and non-Pygmy heritage. Back to the Neanderthal point: Neanderthals were roughly as smart as modern humans, despite their larger brains. They were more developed in some parts of their brains than we are, but they were also underdeveloped in certain regions too. We conquered them thanks to us having superior numbers, as Neanderthals were never a very large species to begin with. Over time, the Neanderthals who didn't go to war with Homo sapiens bred themselves to extinction, and the last remnants of them died out some 30,000-40,000 years ago in Southern Europe. There is no evidence to suggest that they were 100 more intelligent than us, sorry to disappoint you.	African	Black	1/248	0.403

People like Elias are truly the issue with the world today. He's telling a group of people that have been in Europe since the year 1200 to go back to their homeland, but he's also telling us he moved from his homeland to another European country lol. Look, it's not a race thing...people go where the money is. Western Europe has money hence why our boy Elias went to Germany from Greece or why many immigrants go there today. Right now if Laos or Namibia became filthy rich all types of people would move there. Stop with this racism, you're lame as fuck.	Racism	Ethnicity	1/103	0.971

Joorpi Mannon These are Turkmen : http://www.youngpioneertours.com/wp-content/uploads/2014/11/150-turkmen-national-performance.jpg Do they look Mongoloid? Don't think so. What if I told you there are many different types of Turks and Turkic languages, and that Turks have never been entirely Mongoloid? There are O uz, Uyghur, Kipchak, O ur and Yakut/Siberian Turks and all differ from each other both genetically and linguistically. Central Asian Turks are not as closely related as one would suggest, there is a big difference between a Turkmen (O uz) and a Kazakh (Kipchak). All Turks are a mix of the Caucasoid and Mongoloid races, Turks do not belong to one race, unlike most Subsaharan Africans, East Asians Native Americans and Europeans. Kipchaks are Turks that have always been more Mongoloid than Caucasoid, while O uz Turks have always been more Caucasoid than Mongoloid. Genetic studies show Turkmen are 18 40 Mongoloid or East Asian. There is a lot of confusion due to this fact. Genetic studies on Turkey's Turks often use Central Asian and East Asian interchangeably while they are two distinct things. The Turks seem to have 5 15 East Asian or Mongoloid ancestry, with peaks as high as 20 , but researchers call this ancestry Central Asian due to confusion. The Central Asian ancestry of Turks is actually higher than that because of part of our ancestry that is racially Caucasoid but from Central, not West Asia. Commercial DNA tests also do this. They look at your Mongoloid ancestry and then interpret only that as Central or East Asian. This is why Uzbeks and Turkmen score more West Asia than Central Asia with these DNA tests. They are very faulty and need	Ethnic	Ethnicity	1/654	0.153

Elias Turkified Greeks my ass. The Greeks and Armenians of Anatolia were merely hellenized and armenified Anatolians like Leo pointed out. Tigran the Great armenified the region and spread Armenian culture and language. Alexander the Great, Christianity and subsequently the Byzantines all hellenized Anatolia, but their genetics were in no way Greek. Matter of fact, the Byzantine emperors and Trapezuntian scholars even called the Empire of Trebizond nothing more than a Lazic border state, because there were almost only Lazes that became hellenized overtime. Hence genetic studies show Pontic Greeks have literally almost no Greek ancestry. The Greek language came from the Proto-Indo-European homeland in Ukraine/Russia. By means of migrations the Indo-Europeans spread to many regions in the world and assimilated the pre-Indo-European peoples of the regions they settled in. Some regions were settled by many Indo-European tribes, like Kyrgyzstan and Kashmir, but others not so much. Genetic studies show that Greeks barely have ancestry from Indo-Europeans, especially Cretans. What happened is, after 3000 BC the Greek Indo-European tribes who were heavily outnumbered by pre-Greeks imposed their identity and language on the pre-Greeks, who had their own identity and language but lost those due to the assimilation. The modern Greeks are primarily descended from pre-Greeks. The exact same process happened to Turks. There are two differences : 1. Turks have more Central Asian ancestry than Greeks have Indo-European ancestry 2. Anatolian Turks assimilated and mixed with non-Turks after 1071 while Greeks assimilated and mixed with non-Greeks around 3000-1500 BC. So if	Racist	Ethnicity	1/511	0.196

Pericolo L.A Many empires ruled several countries for time, including Europe. Forget history for a second. The descendants of Alexander the Great your referring to are a minority living in Pakistan and Afghanistan and they accept that. They are referred as Kalash people, an ancient ethnic group living high in the remote mountains of Pakistan. They are a result of Alexander's army and they have maintained them values ie they marry in the same tribe and they don't mix with any other group of people. They are light skin, coloured eyes, European looking. So yes that's the Alexander tribe. Also my paternal grandmas side all have blue/green coloured eyes, just so you know people in Asia are in different shapes, sizes and have different skin tones, shades. South Asia is diverse and no people are not rape products just because one has coloured eyes!
